~ Foreword ~

In the golden age of chivalry mail-clad heroes rode out to battle with wrong, to rescue the weak, and to uphold honor. The modern knight, though dimly conscious of this past age, upholds the same ideals. Equipped with the weapons of knowledge and truth, he fares forth to wage war against ignorance and superstition.

~ Dedication ~

Go our mothers and fathers-- who, through their unselfish-efforts and many personal-- sacrifices, have made it possible for us to face the world prepared, we, the student body, lovingly and respectfully dedicate this, the nineteen hundred twenty-nine Wyakem
as an expression of a small part of our appreciation.

In Memoriam

Richard S. Williamson

Let us pause a moment
while we pay memory's tribute to one who has passed beyond.

He studied here to learn earth's little lore. For him the gates have opened to a higher wisdom.

Our book is taking shape. Details of the past year are at hand. Good old W. S. N. S. with her many attractions, her advantages, and her opportunities, is a dear place to us who understand her. In the following pages is presented the W. S. N. S. of today. And thus the Hyakem of Nineteen Twenty-Nine has its beginning.

Laughter and voices mingle with morning sunshine as students come from class.

Flowering almond, harbinger of spring, sottly brilliant against the gray stone.

Sun-splashed and quiet, the doorway drowns through the afternoon.

Black metal and gleaming stone lend color to the simple dignity of the library facade.

Curving walks trace patterns on the lawns beside the training school.

Branch and blossom half-conceal the duller colors of brick and stone.

The mellow glow of the doorway is reflected from a carpet of gleaming snow.

President George H. Black

An Appreciation

TO President George H. Black whose outstanding leadership in the field of teacher training has brought national recognition to this school; whose high ideals and sincerity of purpose have inspired the hundreds of students who have come under his influence; whose ability to visualize, plan, and build has created a modern institution of learning, we the student body respectfully offer this small tribute.

Dean for Women

MURIEL G. McFARLAND

MANY of you asked yourselves at high school graduation "why go to college?" No doubt that same question has repeated itself to you from year to year. As students and alumni you may still be wondering, "Why did I go to college?"

Was it because your friends were going? Were you interested because of what a college education might contribute to you personally? Did you go because there seemed to be little else to do? Did you go to prepare yourself to earn your own living? Were you irresistibly drawn by a desire for more knowledge along one particular line? Did you wish to learn more about life itself? Did you hope to grow under the guidance of older men and women and in the companionship of your own generation?

Whatever your reasons for going may have been, ask yourself whether you have really found those things which you desired. Has your college helped you? Have you helped your college?

May the students and alumni of the Washington State Normal School at Ellensburg be able to truly say that college life here has helped them attain worthwhile aims. May they always feel loyalty and pride for their Alma mater.

MURIEL G. McFARLAND.

Dean for Women.

Dean for Men

"Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love, and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk. I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mort and palace—soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate!

"If sleeping wake—if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every state.
Mortals desire and conquer every foe
Save Death; but those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury, and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore.
I answer not, and I return no more!"

—John James Ingalls.

Within the solemn portals of the Old Ad, the faculty and administrative officers labor to make our's a greater Washington State Normal School. In the classrooms professors discourse freely on man and his activities, the whole mechanism of the educational machine making up the cherished routine of college life. In after years, memory's echo will bring back to us our many happy associations with members of the administration.

Sophomore Class

IN the light of its achievements during the past two years the class of 1929 may face the future hopefully and eagerly. It may well turn proudly though reluctantly from its Alma Mater with a sense of having nobly upheld the traditions of the school in both scholastic and social activities. It can feel that it has achieved for itself the goal toward which it aimed when it entered as a freshman class.

Partly, perhaps, because it remembered its own meekness as freshmen, the class made it possible for the new students to feel the warmth and sincerity of its welcome at the Freshman Mixer. Then, when study was at its height and the student body encompassed with tasks, came the Sophomore Show, making students forget their troubles with its refreshing and sparkling entertainment. With pomp and formality the worthy achievements of the class were crowned in social assemblage at the Colonial Ball, when the splendor of social young America was revived with the traditional minuet.

The future opens wide and presents a vast horizon; a horizon radiantly tinted with the brilliant hues of success and triumph awaiting the endeavors of the Sophomore class of 1929.

For the past years the graduates of twenty-nine have made this school their home. They are soon to look back on their college life as a cherished memory. The present drudgery will then be pleasant shades of the past, echoes that will be heard time and time again as life goes on. And the Freshmen who have stood aside for the Sophomores are now ready to take their place as leaders of the school.

Freshman Class

OCTOBER 1928 marked the entrance of the largest Freshman class ever enrolled at W. S. N. S. For Freshmen, its members proved very alert and showed much adaptability, entering into the life of the college with the confidence of Seniors.

The first part of the year found the Freshmen too busy to stage any vigorous entertainment, though they developed a football team that did justice to the class and school by winning all of the games it played. When spring arrived they held a picnic at the Upper Bridge on the Yakima. However, the enthusiasm shown at this time was far outdone by the hilarity wasted on the Sophomore's fake Sneak.

The Senior Sneak proved a disastrous failure for the Peagreeners whose president, Cliff Samuelson, was handcuffed and forcibly removed into hiding by the wily Sophomores. All efforts of the Frosh to prevent the advent of a Sneak were quickly done away with by duckings in the creek.

As a tribute to the graduating class of 1929, the Freshman class sponsored the Freshman Frolic. This occasion represented the traditional gesture of farewell on the part of the first-year class to the departing upperclassmen.

The Hyakem

From the formality of the Colonial Ball to the informality of Campus Day and Senior Sneak, from the busy hum of the typewriters in the Campus Crier and Hyakem offices to the lazy atmosphere of recreation on a Sunday afternoon, life at W. S. N. S. is one continual round of Joy, filled with happy moments worthy of memory's recognition, and overflowing with companionships that will ever remain dear to our hearts.

Now, This Year---

THE Senior Sneak proved to be a real picnic for the Upperclassmen who seemed content to let the Frosh do most of the sneaking. It was anything but a picnic for the Peagreeners.

Crammed into trucks and busses in a fashion that would make life in a sardine can seem like life in the great open spaces, the shivering, tired Sophs made their departure from the Elks Temple at four o'clock in the morning. They were bound for Riverside Park at Selah where the festivities of a successful Sneak were held.

Yes, Cliff Samuelson, prexy of the Frosh, was there. The afternoon before, the wily Sophomores had forcibly removed him from the campus in handcuffs borrowed from the sheriff. He is shown second from the top on the right in a "Friends, Romans, and countrymen" pose. Dumb, these Frosh! Vivian Hansen and Irma Anderson were brought to the scene under similar circumstances.

Then, of course we had the lovelorn, A. J. and Helen, Chuck and Laura, etcetera, etcetera. Isn't it grand though?

Bismark, shown third from the bottom on the left, is being duly decorated for his prowess in tossing the equine footwear. ---And of course we ate the usual buns, weiners, and bananas. We can't quite comprehend the situation as portrayed by Musgrove, Kelly, and Templeton. They seem to be trying to inhale the German bananas.

CAMPUS DAY, held on May 7, was just another of those things where the only thing that got cleaned up was the eats. Nobody did much of anything, and the vigilance committees did everybody they could.

A new tradition was inaugurated when it was decided that henceforth on every Campus Day, all athletic managers for the year should be ducked in the creek. ---It was a splendid idea. The originator ought to be given something the athletic managers agreed.

Everybody turned out for work at eight o'clock sharp, and for most of them the drama ended there. The Campus Day committee should never, never frighten the students by mentioning work. A good many more would have arrived on the scene had it not been for that.

Bill was on hand with the school truck but he wasn't needed—nobody got killed. Even Mr. Quigley was subjected to a hot application of a six by six, playfully called a paddle by those timid souls who strained to lift it. The girls' vigilantes also wielded a wicked paddle where it did most good.

We caught Haney in one of his cute moments. What is he trying to emulate? Br'er Rabbit, perhaps. And although Bob Wiley is a clever man, we might suggest that he use something else other than a pick to part the young man's hair with. It's injurious to the scalp.

Of course, Orry May would make believe the mower was on the blink when he saw the vigilance committee coming.

Joe Patterson looks more like a herring than anything else after an involuntary plunge in the creek. —And he didn't even have his rubbers on!

EARLY in April, the annual trip to the Grande Coulee was made. Here is shown a truck load of students embarking. The next is just a good picture of Ruble, winner of the Moser trophy.

Dick Mueller in one of his passionate poses. The boys play Postoffice for the cameraman. Will we ever forget the post-office, and the way we used to reach around a couple of boxes to see if our mail could have possibly got in the wrong box? Fern and Helen seem to be playing a pretty dangerous game. They are two of the many co-eds who turned out for track this year.

The Hyakem staff gets together at the Hyakem office. This picture was taken at the beginning of the year when things up there looked pretty decent. Before the book was out, it looked like a boiler factory after an explosion.

We think that Lois Wachtman is demonstrating a new jui jitsu hold on Marion Hoag who seems to be a willing victim.

At the beginning of the year the Sophomores made a va'n attempt to enforce the green cap rule. The whole thing proved to be a flop the night Joe Miller dashed out to help the Sophs paddle a Frosh and to his embarrassment found that it was a Sophomore being paddled by a group of Freshmen. Here is shown a few of the boys attempting to make Guggenbickler put on his green lid.

Wes Wachtman and Hank Thacker, sofaologists par excellence, do a little work on the campus. The Glee Club gave a number of programs in different parts of the valley during the year. The gang leaves on one of these trips. A group wiles away an afternoon at the piano.

NIXON is shown starting somebody on s-me kind of race. Embom and Randall; when they heard about Pavo Nurmi they thought that all Pins were track men. George and Rusty, faithful baseball managers. Farina—no relation whtscever says George. Just as we thought, this is the way Haney and Buck worked on Campus Day. Our solution to such a problem would be to put rubber handles on the garden silverware.

Will we ever forget Dad's Tostwich Palace? Where we discussed the affairs of state and nation—where we won and lost many an athletic contest as we dunked our maplesticks in coffee. Where we went fifty-fifty on a quart of milk and a half-dozen cookies. Here the buzz of voices, the scrapping of feet, and the sound of hot coffee pass'ng lips means welcome. We'll never forget Dad Straight's Palace at the edge of the campus.

The first warm day found the library quite deserted. Who wanted to study on such an afternoon?

Harold Naubert received a handsome reward for capturing the escaped gorilla. The gorilla is Tim Kelly. Next is shown two martyrs to the cause of bigger and better school catalogs. "Swede" Jensen and Kildall are shown enjoying the "Winter sports afforded by the close proximity of the Cascades." No, No, Nora, the people at the bottom are not playing tennis; they are shown at the winter outing with a flock of snow shoes.

Walt Cain Dungan, our business manager, when told that he had an easy job soliciting advertising, said, "I'll take a hard job next time." Judging from this picture, he is contemplating suicide at the thought of "Four hundred dollars more."

Carl Jensen, Flo Bice, Harold McMakin, "Scotty" Spencer, and "Hank" Bohannon get ready for a toboggan slide. "Scotty" Macdonald seems to be all dressed up in his what-you-may-call-it costume. "Scotty" was a great fellow for publicity and "organized yelling."

Coach Sandberg and his assistant, Joe Burks, are shown in the ovals. For the third consecutive time the Men's Residence copped the cup for the best homecoming sign. This year, as in the past, it was an illuminated night sign. In keeping with the game, the Wildcat was shown chasing the Husky Pup. "Go Get 'Em Wildcats!" graced the top of the sign.

Where or why the next picture was taken is a mystery to us. Yes, you guessed it right the first time—it's Annabelle!

ORGANIZED yelling at one of the football games last fall. "Googy" seems to be mounted on some kind of a piece of machinery here. Where it is, what it is, and why it is, is a mystery to us.

We've heard about the girls at Ellensburg Normal being big eaters but—Ye Gawds, we didn't think they were such heavy drinkers, and especially the prexy of the Women's Athletic Association.

Bobby is shown here in a characteristic pose. Few are the people on the campus who don't know Bobby. With a cheery wave and "Hello, there," Bobby Burns, Normal printer, greets his many friends as they pass by in the morning, afternoon or evening.

We seem to have got the three worse beards in school for pictures. Bob Wiley had the best beyond a doubt but the negative got lost in the developer and by the time we traced him down he had parked the shredded wheat and was denting a davenport at Sue Lombard Hall. "Scotty," "Oats" and Gilbert seem to have lost a good portion of the sea weed. Gilbert had a growth like a Persian rug. As for Oats and Scotty—

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good." With the first Chinook came water. With the first water came wet sidewalks. The boys are shown digging ditches to drain the thoroughfare.

Remember the day the city water works went "flooeey?" Here are a couple of the boys removing the dirt in Coofer Creek. "Goody" and Fonda to be exact.

Anderson and Long, premier tennis sharks of the year.

Dana, can't you ever be good? —And another man's wife!

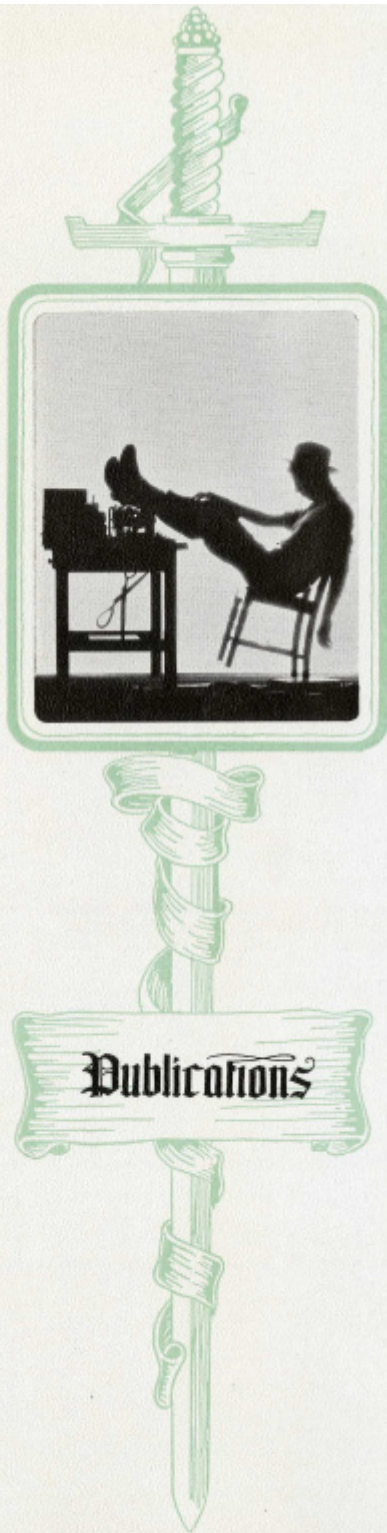

Robinson and his lady friend go for a stroll.

In the preceding section we have made an attempt to picture as many events as we possibly could in an informal way. It replaces the snapshot pages originally carried in the feature section and in compiling it we have made an effort to include as great a variety and cover as large a scope as space permitted.

The Associated Student Body

AS in the past, the Associated Student Body has this year accomplished a number of very worthwhile things. Perhaps the biggest project the organization has successfully weathered is the completion of the first unit of the new Associated Student Pavilion. This unit includes a maple basketball court of the maximum dimensions for contest games or two courts for practice games. The seating capacity of this unit is nearly one thousand.

Homecoming was perhaps the most successful of the A. S. B. social events for the season. Record attendance of alumni characterized this event. Campus Day and Senior Day were other successful events.

The success which has characterized athletics at W. S. N. S. during the last three years was not lacking during the season 1928-29. Championship teams in all branches of sport serve to add more to this organization's list of accomplishments.

The 1929 Hyakem

IT is a difficult thing to accurately measure the lives of such a great number of students. Particularly is this true when these people represent such a diversity of interests and activities. Such a characterization often gives undue prominence to one group and subordinates another. However, we have tried to make this volume of the Hyakem a true portrayal of life which represents the group. There are many who will disagree with the interpretation, and it is freely acknowledged that there are chances of error. We hope that we have succeeded in accomplishing our purpose, that of mirroring W. S. N. S. as it is today, and hope that errors which might occur will be of minor consequence.

We have used chivalry as the motif of this volume, realizing that through chivalry and a democratic spirit manifested on our campus the institution will grow and prosper. We have tried to keep our theme from dominating the book and rather have used it as a vehicle for unity throughout the volume.—The Editor.

Campus Crier

THE Campus Crier attracted the immediate attention of the students this fall when it made its first appearance of the year on registration day, September 28. New students welcomed the opportunity it offered to acquaint themselves with the faculty and campus news. Second year students were surprised to find that the Campus Crier had grown from a five column 16 inch to a six column 20 inch paper. This change in size exactly doubled the news space and has enabled the staff to display important news to a better advantage.

The Crier is a member of the Intercollegiate Press, an organization which furnishes news of other colleges. Few Normal schools or weekly publications are included in its membership. The Crier is one of the exceptions.

AFTER three weeks of drifting without a staff, because of the fact that the publication started before the opening of school, the Crier was headed by Haney Le Blanc who piloted the paper through the fall and winter quarters. Ted Kildell, last year's editor, then stepped into the editor's chair upon the resignation of Le Blanc. The middle of the spring quarter found Ted overloaded with work, and Gunar Tranum, associate editor finished the year.

No permanent staff of reporters was organized, but the work was handled by the members of the newswriting classes under Miss Dorothy D. Redenbaugh who was also faculty adviser of the Crier, and free lance writers. Students who were the most reliable workers included Lowell Hawley, Bill Nicholson, Jean McMurray, Pete Wick, Sarah Hayes, Lucy Richards, Beatrice Jensen, Elizabeth Bratton, Carl Jensen, and Henry Bohannon. Walter Dugan handled the advertising.

Ladies' Ensemble

THE main feature of the Music Department this year was a tour, which took the place of an operetta. The program was well planned and included numbers from all of the musical organizations and a one-act play. The Ladies' Ensemble, under the direction of Miss Ethel T. Miller, participated in this program. They have also appeared in many school affairs and have enjoyed a very successful year.

Men's Glee Club

THE interest in the Men's Glee Club has been running high this year. With a limited number of members much special work was possible and a well organized group was the result. With Miss Ethel T. ## Two One-Act Plays

THE Little Art Theater sponsored an "Open House" entertainment, March 8, at which two one-act plays were given under the direction of Miss Anna May Price. "The Sprained Ankle," by Kelly, presented a scene in a girls' dormitory and three scheming girls who did a delightful and entertaining bit of work. The "Flattering Word," by Stokes, was an amusing and most outstanding performance. How the flattering words of an actor changed the opinions of members of the household gave opportunity for some very realistic acting.

Moroni Olsen Players

THE Moroni Olsen Circuit Repertory company have throughout the year given three plays at the Ellensburg Theater, under the sponsorship of the Associated Student Body. "Expressing Willie," October 30 and 31; "Wild Fire," February 25; and "What Every Woman Knows," in May. Each play was enjoyed by all and they were looked forward to with great anticipation.

TWILIGHT PROGRAMS

THREE Twilight Hour Programs were given for the entertainment of the students and faculty this year. The first was a Musical given by Faculty Members, and one given by the students and the last was a reading given by Miss Anna May Price, "The Ivory Door," by A. A. Milne.

RICHARD HALIBURTON

RICHARD HALLIBURTON, the author of "The Royal Road to Romance," told of his many adventures at a lecture in the Ellensburg Theater March 15. The famous author came here under the sponsorship of the Associated Students of the Normal School, and proved to be even more interesting than his enjoyable books.

Little Art Theater Guild

THE Little Art Theater Guild has been open this year, for the first time, to all students interested in dramatic work. The aim of the organization is to further an appreciation for dramatics of a finer type. With Miss Anna May Price as adviser, they have sponsored all of the plays given during the year. They also acted as hosts to the students and faculty of the school at an Open House for the Little Art Theater. The affair was one of the outstanding events of the year. Two one-act plays were given in the Art Theater at the first of the evening and were followed by a dance in the gymnasium.

Rollo's Wild Oat

ROLLO'S WILD OAT, Clara Kramer's modern comedy, was presented by the Little Art Theater Guild, December 6 and 7, under the direction of Miss Anna May Price. Although this play was the first attempt of the year it brought forth an appreciation of the fine work being done by the Dramatics Department.

The play centers around Rollo, who has great aspirations of playing Hamlet. He engages a company of actors and finances the play. On the eve of performance many exciting things happen and after many heartbreaking experiences he decides that acting is not in his line. The story is very humorous and brought out some very clever characterizations.

Scene from "Paolo and Francesca"

Paolo and Francesca

THE climax of the dramatic season was reached by the presentation of Paolo and Francesca, a medieval play, by Stephen Phillips. Under the direction of Miss Anna May Price this work was a crystalization of the year's activity in dramatics and was perhaps the most potential and ambitious play ever attempted at this school.

Amidst surroundings filled with an atmosphere of grandeur and dignity of the Middle Ages the effect created was added to by the Little Art Theater itself, in which it was presented.

There must be a time when the serious things of life are forgotten, and life considered in a lighter, more fanciful frame of mind. Here is a part of our book which depicts the social events of the season at Washington State Normal School. Who will ever forget these and many other events which have marked themselves indelibly on our hearts?

Dutch Dance

FEATURING an elaborate and beautifully executed Dutch motif, the annual Home Economics Dance was held in the Associated Student Pavilion on the evening of April 20. Decorations were unusually artistic consisting of windmills, tulips, and restful canopies for the dancers. Gay colored streamers hung from the ceiling and walls.

This year the dance was of a strictly informal nature. Guests wore sport clothes and caramel-covered apples were sold during the progress of the affair. During the intermission a song by Dale Yearrington and Norman Schille furnished amusement. From a tulip decorated platform in the middle of the pavilion came enchanting dance music by the Crystal Serenaders.

The Easter Breakfast

OF social importance was the Easter Breakfast given in the dining room of Sue Lombard Hall. Bright spring flowers were the chief means of decoration, the center of each table being literally aglow with color. In keeping with a tradition of long standing, town students and faculty guests were present.

Without a doubt, Easter Breakfast this year was one of the most beautiful and unique affairs given. While the guests were entering and at intervals during the meal, appropriate musical numbers were rendered by members of the music department under the direction of Miss Ethel Miller.

Costume Ball

BOTH the one-act plays and the Costume Ball sponsored by the Little Art Theater Guild as their open house entertainment were decidedly successful.

The dance which was given in the new gymnasium was pronounced one of the best dances of the year. Prizes were given for the best costumes and general hilarity was everywhere evident. The plays, "The Sprained Ankle," and "The Flattering Word," given in the Little Theater were well received.

The Colonial Ball

AN old fashioned colonial garden formed a very fitting and colorful background for the Colonial Ball which was given in the Associated Student Pavilion on the evening of February 23.

Gowns of every shade and hue were worn, from the whitest white to the reddest red. Soft lights played on the merry makers as they danced to the strains of the Crystal Serenaders. As a thirst quencher, the iciest of ice water was served by abliging darcy.

During the intermission the guests were entertained by a stately minuet danced by youths in powdered wigs and dainty misses in crinoline. In keeping with the occasion, refreshments consisted of frozen fruit dessert, cake, and coffee.

Sport Carnival

GAY-COLORED confetti and enchanting music characterized the Sport Carnival given by the Womens Athletic Association in the Pavilion, Friday night, March 22. A carnival background added materially to the effectiveness of the occasion.

Perhaps the most exciting and looked-forward-to event of the evening was the crowning of a king and queen. Louise Carlson and Harold McMakin were the happy winners.

Music was furnished by the Crystal Serenaders, and during the intermission Margaret Paul Johnson gave a reading and Carol Von Carnop, a member of the orchestra, played a banjo solo.

An exciting waltz contest was won by Bernice Best and Tim Kelly.

Off-Campus Dance

THE best music of the year characterized the Off-Campus Girls' dance given in the Pavilion on the evening of April 27. Nae Nickolaus and his Footwarmers furnished both the amusement and the music for the occasion.

The gymnasium was decorated with large flower-covered panels and colored lights. Punch was served from a booth during the course of the dance.

This was the first social event sponsored by the newly organized Off-Campus Club.

The Snow Ball

PERVADED by an atmosphere of winter, the annual Snow Ball was given in the spacious dining room of Sue Lombard Hall on the evening of December 8. Gigantic futuristic icebergs and icicles added greatly to the effectiveness of the decorations which were carried out in varying shades of blue and white. Flood lights of various colors played on the gay-colored dresses of the dancers and made each dance a colorful spectacle.

During the intermission, fur-clad dancers in white entertained while refreshments consisting of mint ice and fluffy snowballs of angelfood were served.

Seated amidst a group of miniature icebergs were the Crystal Serenaders who furnished music for the affair.

Men's Open House

ON two occasions during the year, the members of the Men's Club entertained at Open House in the Men's Residence. One time the open house was in the form of a tea in the afternoon, and house inspection and a dance in the evening. As has been the custom in past years, these occasions were very enjoyable affairs. The recreation room of the house was very ornately decorated and various forms of entertainment were given. The entire student body and faculty were invited.

Week-End Dances

AN innovation in the usual order of things was evident in the social functions of the Associated Student Body this year. Card parties and dances were held alternately in Sue Lombard and Kamoia Halls. At times various campus organizations took charge of these dances and card parties. Chief among the events sponsored by the Associated Students were the Home Coming and Senior Day dances. Both of these were very festive affairs, the entire student body taking an active part in making them successful. The usual week end dances were held in the Pavilion, Kamoia and Sue Lombard Halls, music being furnished by a student orchestra.

Swaying, shouting bands of students send forth a loud "Yea Team" over the field of battle, striving by sheer might of their vocal organs to win the game. And upon football gridiron and basketball court, the encouraged athlete struggles ever to answer the entreaties of the students, to uphold the name of the school, to establish a reputation for the college that will make others proud to call this their Alma Mater. It is to him, the Athlete, that the following section is dedicated.

COACH ROY SANDBERG

ATHLETICS are not athletics at W. S. N. S. without Coach Roy Sandberg. From the mediocre to the supreme, the teams representing the Crimson and Black have been guided to the highest pedestal of glory in the history of Washington State Normal School under Sandy's coaching system. Three consecutive football championships with three games lost during this time comprises his record on the gridiron. Two consecutive championships in basketball and two in baseball complete the record in athletics during the past three years.

Sandy believes that athletics are worth while only when they are coupled with clean, hard fighting and a spirit of sportsmanship. It is in keeping with this belief that he coaches.

To football mentors of the Northwest, the name Sandberg means "tough going;" to W. S. N. S., the best there is in athletics; to the student body, "Just one of the fellows."

FACING a heavy schedule of ten hard, fought games in as many weeks, Coach Roy Sandberg issued the initial call for football candidates three weeks before the opening of the fall quarter. Forty-two men responded and were issued suits for the first turnout September 12. Assisted by Joe Burks, line coach, Sandy put his men through two strenuous practice periods a day in an effort to whip his team into shape for the opening game on September 22.

Ten days after the first turnout, the squad, composed of one and two-year veterans and a wealth of new material made the trip to Spokane to open the season against Gonzaga University.

Ellensburg 0

Gonzaga 31

TWO touchdowns by donation and three truly earned tells the story of the Gonzaga Bulldogs' 31 to 0 victory. The Normal made nine first downs to Gonzaga's eleven but failed to stop Hunting and the fleet-footed Mel Ingram from crossing their goal line in every quarter. Gonzaga's experience and the fact that they had a veteran team made it possible for them to win.

The Wildcats made plenty of yardage and held the Bulldogs on even terms during the third and fourth quarters. They could not, however, penetrate the Bulldog defense when near the goal. Robinson, Lindquist, Jacky, Sterling and Gagnon for the Wildcats shared honors with Ingram and Hunting.

Although they lost, yet they won, for the showing made against the powerful University was ample evidence of ability, spirit, and team-work. These elements contributed to victories of the future.

Ellensburg

College of Puget Sound

A fast smooth-working team from the College of Puget Sound handed the Wildcats their second defeat of the season in the 1928 curtain raiser at Rodeo Field September 29. After battling on even terms for three quarters, the Loggers initiated a passing and running attack which produced the final results of the game, two touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Outplayed but not outfought, the Wildcats were in the runing until the final whistle. Their defense crumbled in the last moments of play under the terrific battering of the C. P. S. backs.

Gillihan and Purvis were the "big guns" for the winners. Robinson, veteran Wildcat back, played a brilliant game for the Normal. Lindquist and Guggenbickler, sturdy linesmen, did very creditable work on the line.

ON October 5, at Rodeo Field, the Wildcats had an easy time submerging the Navy's heavy football eleven under a wave of touchdowns. Living up to the best traditions of the sea, the gobs fought to the last gun, but at no time were they a match for the Crimson and Black machine.

Ellensburg 38

W. S. C. Frosh 7

ON the twelfth of October the team met the W. S. C. Freshmen on Rogers' Field and broke their record of four years of defeat by trouncing them 38 to 7. Outplayed from the opening gun, the Cougar Babes resorted to defensive football during most of the game. The Normal line broke through continuously to throw the yearling backs for big losses. They rushed every play until the Frosh were satisfied to kick on first down. Frequent fumbles continually marred their play. On both offense and defense, Sandy's eleven showed a machine-like teamwork for the first time during the year.

Connors, De Weese, Timmons, Peterson, and Robinson formed a smooth-working combination in the backfield.

BELLINGHAM lost its chance for a championship on October 19 when the Wildcats smashed over two touchdowns to win a hard-fought game 12 to 0. A 44-yard drive with "Babe" Peterson going over on a series play accounted for the first score. He repeated in the second half when he opened the battle with a 90-yard run through the entire Viking team after taking Odell's kick-off on his own ten-yard line.

Bellingham put up a desperate fight from the opening kick-off. Led by Odell and Erickson, they outplayed the Wildcats in the second half when they carried the ball to the four-yard line as the final gun robbed them of an almost certain touchdown. Timmons at full, and Captain Ruble, Guggenbickler, and Lindquist in the line were outstanding.

U. of W. Frosh 0

THE Crimson and Black eleven celebrated Homecoming and sent the Old Grads home rejoicing when they gave the University of Washington Frosh their only defeat of the 1929 season. A cool, fighting line outcharged the heavier Washington forwards, and successfully stopped the yearlings' power plays upon which Coach "Tubby" Graves had depended for yardage.

Led by two veteran backfield stars, George Peterson, and Lynn Robinson, a beautiful running offense three times put the ball across the Purple and Gold goal line for the Wildcats' fourth straight victory. A great team played a great game of football. A wide-awake line backed by a brilliant backfield again upset Washington's best laid plans.

Cheney 7

OPENING the game with a smashing offense, the Wildcats completely surprised the Cheney Savages when they met at Cheney's Home Coming. During the first half, the Crimson and Black machine managed to push over two touchdowns. Following a sensational run by "Tex" Robinson on an opening play, Dick Timmons, diminutive Walddcat back, took the ball over on two line plunges. The second score came as a result of a consistent drive of sixty-five yards, Timmons again carrying the pigskin over.

Eleven fighting Savages came back in the second half to outplay the Wildcats. They scored one touchdown and drove deep into Ellensburg territory only to be twice thrown back from the one-foot line by the Crimson and Black linesmen. The game proved to be a hard one to win and a hard one for Cheney to lose.

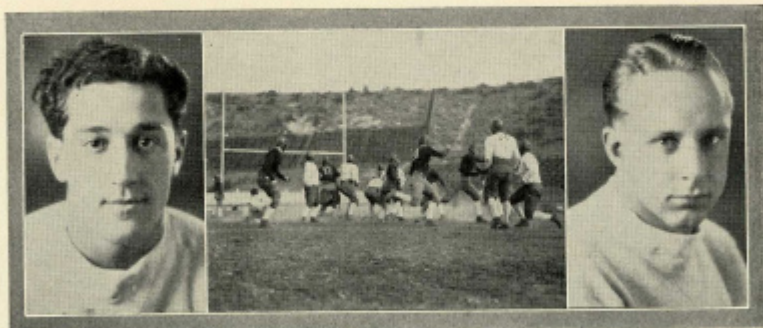

Morgan, Fowler, and Volkman for Cheney, and Timmons, and Robinson for Ellensburg played a great game of ball. In spite of stars, credit for the winning of this game goes to the line.

Ellensburg 12

Idaho 0

BY continuing their winning streak, the Wildcats made their record one of six straight by beating the Idaho Freshmen 12 to 0, before an Armistice Day crowd of over 3,000 at Wenatchee. The Gem State Yearlings started with an aerial attack which netted them much yardage. This method of play was at all times dangerous, but its failure to gain yardage through the Ellensburg line cost them the game.

A blocked Idaho punt by Guggenbickler in the second quarter served as an opportunity for "Babe" Peterson to make Ellensburg's first touchdown. Two dazzling 40-yard runs by Robinson in the final quarter accounted for another six points. Other stars of this game were Guggenbickler and Lindquist.

University Super-Varsity 13

WHAT proved to be the best game of the season was terminated when the final whistle blew at the end of the University of Washington Super-Varsity-Ellensburg tilt. A recovered fumble and a perfectly-executed pass netted a touchdown for the Purple and Gold. Long runs by George Peterson and Lynn Robinson, combined with short line plunges and two completed passes accounted for two touchdowns by the Wildcat machine during the first half. The Supers added another score via the aerial route.

"Babe" Peterson furnished the big thrill of the day in the third quarter when he ran through the entire Washington team for a touchdown after receiving a punt on the Wildcat 18-yard line. Washington failed to score in the second quarter though they twice threatened with drives of forty and sixty yards.

Every member of the team played a wonderful game.

Basketball

FOR the first time since basketball became a major sport at Ellensburg State Normal, Coach Sandberg was able this fall to offer his basketekers a home in which to carry on their training. This was made possible by the completion of the new Associated Student Body Pavilion, completely equipped with offices, dressing rooms, showers, and a spacious playing court. Collapsible bleachers furnished seats for from 800 to 1,000 spectators. This modern building, because it gave the players a place on the campus in which to train and play, was a big factor in the team's success during the 1929 season.

ABOUT forty candidates for Varsity competition answered Coach Sandberg's initial call for recruits December 4. Three veterans of last year were among those from whom the team was to be built. Ray Jensen, a consistent guard, Kermit Rodgers, a guard and captain of the 1928 squad, and Goody Morrison, center, were the veterans. The squad was strengthened a few days later by the return of Brooks Lewellyn, and Roy Thomas, both lettermen of the 1928 season.

Two weeks of stiff practice before the Christmas holidays did much to put the team in shape for a strenuous season. It was during this period that Sutphin and Gagnon, new men, cinched their places on the squad.

W. S. C. AND IDAHO TRIP

AFTER a short Christmas vacation, the team reported back in school December 29, leaving the following day on a barnstorming trip against Washington State College and the University of Idaho. Meeting the Cougar Varsity on their own floor, the Wildcats took the first of the two-day series by the close score of 29 to 27. The Normal displayed a smooth-working offense and a defense that the Cougars could not break through consistently.

Proving that their first victory was not attributed to luck, the Wildcats came back and won the second game, again by the slim margin of two points. After trailing through the first half the Crimson and Black rallied to score thirteen points in the last period. During this half the Cougars did not score a single field goal.

THE only game dropped during the trip was to the University of Idaho Vandals. In the last minutes of play the Vandals came from behind to take a three point lead. The score was tied at two different times during the last half. Opening with a burst of speed that the Gem Staters could not check, the Crimson and Black took revenge in the second game of the series by outplaying the Vandals 41 to 28. The Wildcats were at no time threatened during this game.

Sutphin and Gagnon, both new men, showed real basketball ability in these games. Morrison, Rodgers, and Jensen, lettermen, played their usual stellar game.

WHITMAN GAMES

A FAST, smooth quintet from Whitman College formally opened the new gymnasium by defeating the Wildcats 44 to 19. Ellensburg could not cope with the uncanny accuracy and speed of Applegate and Croxdale, midget guards, who looped baskets from all angles of the court. The floor work of Holmgren, giant Whitman center, was a big factor that contributed to a win for the Missionaries.

Whitman made it two straight by taking the second game of the week 33 to 26. Playing the same fast type of basketball that characterized the first game, the Missionaries took an early lead, the score being 21 to 10 at the half. The Wildcats outplayed the Walla Walla five in the last half by scoring sixteen points to Whitman's twelve. Although the team dropped both games to the Whitman five, no misgivings were felt as Whitman had one of the outstanding teams in the Northwest Conference for 1929.

BELLINGHAM GAME

THE first conference tilt of the season was played with Bellingham. An easy game with the Vikings resulted in a 37 to 15 win for the Wildcats. The Bellingham hoopsters failed to show the strength expected of them, poor passing, and erratic shooting contributing to their downfall. The Wildcat offense was deadly. They refused all long shots and insisted on working the ball in for close-ups. Their defense kept Bellingham well in the center floor. The game was featured by the machine-like work of the Crimson and Black squad, and the fact that every man on the team contributed to the scoring.

CHENEY GAME

ELLENSBURG went into the lead in the Tri-Normal race when they defeated the Cheney Savages 43 to 32 in the Associated Student Gymnasium. The Savages took an early lead of fifteen to nine at the quarter, Allen and Fowler of Cheney playing brilliant basketball. A rally led by beautiful shooting by Thomas and Rodgers put the Wildcats out in front at half time. A torrid second half found Cheney still trailing even after Coach Woodward had used his entire string of reserves.

Rodgers was high point man for the Wildcats with fourteen markers to his credit. Sutphin was a close second with thirteen while Allen of Cheney led his teammates with ten.

THE COAST TRIP

FEBRUARY 6, the team left on its western trip on which it played the Tacoma Sciots, the College of Puget Sound, Pacific Lutheran, and one conference game against Bellingham. Four games in five days was a strenuous schedule. However, the squad returned with three victories and only one defeat. This record included a win from Bellingham on their own court. This victory gave Ellensburg a cinch on the conference title.

Sandy's quintet won the first of the four games from the Tacoma Sciots, a fast independent team, by the score 30 to 31. Led by Sutphin, the entire team played dazzling basketball against a team composed of their equals in every angle of the game. The one point margin means, "Lucky to win."

The old C. P. S. jinx worked, and as a result the Wildcats lost their only game to the Loggers. The C. P. S. team held a one-point lead at the half despite some accurate shooting by Sutphin. Their fast, well-balanced team was just a little too good for the Wildcats who showed the effects of a hard game the previous night.

PACIFIC LUTHERAN

THE Wildcats had an easy time winning from the Pacific Lutheran five in the third game of the trip by a lopsided score of 31 to 11. Outclassed from the start, the playing of Carlson, Pacific's red headed center, was the feature of the game.

BELLINGHAM GAME

IN one of the hardest fought games of the season, the Wildcats won from the Bellingham Vikings in the Fairhaven Gymnasium. A narrow margin of three points is testimony of the quality of the game. Torrid from the opening whistle, the game developed into a hear breaking contest for victory. The score of 22 to 19 is not fair testimony of the fight that the Vikings put up.

Gagnon opened the scoring, a lead the Wildcats never relinquished, but one that was at times too small for comfort. Ellensburg led at the half 17 to 9. Sutphin's uncanny shooting accounting for the points.

In a desperate attempt to win, Bellingham outplayed the Wildcats in the second half. They could not, however, overcome their first half handicap. Captain Odell of the Vikings was held to a single field goal for the entire game.

PACIFIC LUTHERAN

WITH the conference title safely tucked away, the Wildcats opened the final series of home games by an easy, uninteresting victory over the Pacific quintet. Morrison contributed 16 points to the largest score of the season, 50 to 25.

COLLEGE OF PUGET SOUND

FOR the first time during the year the Loggers tasted defeat at the hands of the Wildcats when their basketeers fell before the Normal quintet in a fast, rough game. The Loggers opened a terrific pace and ran up a seven point lead in the first five minutes of play. Unable to hold that pace against a determined Crimson and Black rally, they lost their lead and at the end of the first period were trailing 17 to 13. Morrison, Gagnon, and Jensen played a great defensive game. Because of the intense rivalry and close play, the game was rough in spots. Gagnon of the Ellensburg squad was high point man with eight scores.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE FROSH

IN what was perhaps the best game of the entire year, the W. S. C. Frosh won the final home game of the 1929 season when they outplayed the Normal five in the last ten minutes of play to take a torrid battle by ten points. The teams fought throughout the first half on even terms, the score being at 2, 4, 2nd 13. Beautiful shooting by Rodgers, who scored 14 points in the first half, kept the Wildcats in the front 20 to 19. Holsten and Carlton of the Yearlings vied with him in sensational shots.

The Cougar Babes put the game on ice in the second half by staging a rally that netted them a six-point lead. Once ahead the Frosh forced the Wildcat defense to come out for the ball. They then sent the speedy Holsten through to score twelve counters.

Erratic shooting by the Wildcats cost them the game, both Jensen and Sutphin being considerably off form.

ON February 27, Coach Sandberg, Manager Elliott, and seven players left on the eastern trip. The schedule included games with Spokane University, Cheney Normal, Lewiston Normal, and the Washington State College Frosh. With a shifted lineup, the team had an easy time winning from Spokane University. The Spokane players failed to show much strength, Bethel being their only threat. The game ended in a win for the Wildcats, 36 to 21.

THE Wildcats completed a perfect season of Tri-Normal play by winning from Cheney on their own floor 40 to 29. With Sutphin back in form, the Wildcats led from the opening whistle and outscored the Savages 26 to 13 at the half. Led by Allen, Cheney's midget forward, the Savages strengthened their score in the second half. At no time were they dangerous.

LEWISTON NORMAL

As expected, the Lewiston Normal gave the Wildcats a busy forty minutes of basketball. However, the Crimson and Black squad came out on top of a 32 to 27 score.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE FROSH

THE team closed the 1929 season with a game at Pullman against the W. S. C. Freshmen. This game gave them revenge for their defeat of a week or two, and the Wildcats took the tussle 32 to 31. This game was practically the reverse of the game played in Ellensburg between the same two teams. Superb shooting by McNarney and Carlton kept the Cougar Babes out in front during the first twenty minutes of play but a scoring rally at the beginning of the half put the Normal ahead.

"SCOTTY" MACDONALD

SCOTTY is one of those interesting anomalies that one meets but once in a lifetime. A "Scotsman," rather conservative in matters financial, he gives himself without restraint in his capacity of Yell King. A genial, glowing personality; a deep, throaty voice, and enough "it" to play opposite Clara Bow are "Scotty's." When he leaps to his feet before a crowd—boy, they YELL!

OF all the unsung heroes who deserve a niche in the Hall of Fame, we nominate these men: "Buck" Musgrove, "George" Elliott, "Rusty" Templeton, and "Blackie" Black, managers respectively for football, basketball, baseball, and track. Although laboring as hard as the aspiring athletes, they seldom share the later's glory. Only those who know of the infinite details necessary to the staging of an athletic contest can appreciate the troubles and obstacles these men have overcome. Our hats are off to "Buck," "George," "Rusty," and "Blackie."

Baseball

PROSPECTS for another baseball championship went up with a boom, when ten lettermen answered the first call for baseball material, March 24. Among last year's veterans are Naubert, catcher, McMahon and Hacker, pitchers, Wiley and McMackin, first base, Boulton, second base, Lind, shortstop, and Ruble, Connors and Jensen in the outfield. McCammon and Kelly, both look good on the hot corner.

With three weeks' practice under their belts, Coach Sandberg took his team to Walla Walla for a three game series against Whitman College, May 3 and 4. Playing fine ball behind the superb pitching of "Buzz" Sanders, the Normal handed the Missionaries a 4 to 0 shutout in the first game of the season. Sanders allowed only five scattered hits. With Jerry McMahon on the mound, the Normal took the second game of the series 4 to 2. Jerry held the Whitman sluggers to 5 scattered bingles. Whitman copped the final game of the series 7 to 5 in a free hitting contest full of both good and bad baseball.

Bellingham threw a scare into the Wildcats when they came across the mountains and pounded three Crimson and Black twirlers for a 16 to 3 victory in the first of a three-game series. Thorlekson pitched masterful ball for Bellingham while his teammates pounded the ball all over the lot.

The Wildcats came back to take the second game of the series, 9 to 1. Sanders chucked air tight ball for the Normal holding the Viking fence busters safe at all times. Sandy's proteges took the final game of the series Saturday afternoon, May 11, by the close score of 6 to 5. Sanders essayed the Iron Man role by truning in his second victory of the day.

As the Hyakem goes to press, the Crimson and Black nine has yet to meet the Cheney team May 17 and 18 on the local field.

Track

TWO track meets were scheduled for the Crimson and Black squad for the 1928 season. In a dual meet they opposed the University of Washington Freshmen at Seattle, May 18, and the following Saturday they took part in the Tri-Normal meet at Cheney, May 24.

Sig Fogarty, a former Ellensburg track star had charge of track and field events, and proved himself a capable coach. Only three lettermen were back, Nixon, holder of the record in the high jump; Grant, last year's winner of the 440; and Crabb, miler. However, from the large squad of aspirants, Coach Fogarty developed some new men who turned in good records in three trial events. Events were run off during the week, May 11 to 18, to determine who would make the trip to Seattle.

Coach "Sig" Fogarty

Following is a complete list of men turning out and events in which each participated:

One hundred yard dash: Dunnington, Grant, Farrar, May, Enbom, Jensen and Robinson. 220-yard dash: Dunnington, Farrar, May and Grant. High hurdles: Nixon, Farrar and Schlien. Low hurdles: Nixon, Jensen, Schlien and Farrar. High jump: Nixon and Farrar. Broad jump: McNielly, Dunson and Robinson. Pole vault: Sutton and Jensen. Two-mile run: Leonard and Wachtman. Mile run: Thacker, Wachtman, Leonardo and Wernex. 80-yard run: Crab, Enbolm, Wernex and Harnden. 440-yard run: McDonald, Dunnington, Grant, Enbolm, Thomas and deJong. Discus: Shields, Mills and Sutphin. Shot-put: Robinson, Shields, Yeager, Wernex and Sutphin. Javelin: Shields, Sutton, Ayres and deJong. Relay: McDonald, Dunnington, Grant, Wernex, Enbolm, Thomas and Farrar.

Freshman Athletics

ORGANIZATION of a Freshman football team during the fall quarter with the intention of class competition marked the original beginning of Frosh athletics this year. When it became apparent that the other classes would not have teams, other reasons for the continuation of the first year team were soon found. It soon became evident that it offered other than Varsity men a chance for participation and provided the school with future first string material. Because of the late season, the Frosh were able to play but one game of football. This game was lost to Sunnyside High School 13 to 12.

More than thirty aspirants for the Frosh basketball team greeted Coach "Sig" Fogarty when his call for recruits went out. Of a total of eighteen games played, twelve were won by the Peagreen squad.

A great amount of credit for the success of the Freshman squad goes to Coach "Sig" Fogarty who, during his first year with the Frosh, has not only established a name for himself as a coach but also as an all-around good fellow with the students.

Following is a summary of the games:

Carl Jensen, Manager

Striving toward better teachers for this great state, the Washington State Normal School inaugurated the Women's Health Education Department. Of importance is the fact that it brings to the institution the distinction of being one of the most outstanding institutions in this work in the nation. May the following pages serve to portray the progress in this department during the year 1928-1929.

W. A. A. Organization

OPEN to all and offering every girl the friendly aid of others in drawing out her capabilities, W. A. A. is the medium through which any girl may enjoy herself in a social and athletic way.

To obtain any of the five awards offered, one must earn a required number of points under the W. A. A. point system. The awards and points needed to earn them are: arm-band, 50; pin, 125; letter, 300; sweater, 500; and blanket, 800. Points are won in the fields of health, activity, and service. The point is stressed that W. A. A. is for every type of girl and while ability is an asset, one need not be unusually proficient in athletic activities to earn her awards, but may, by earnest endeavor, win points in health and service.

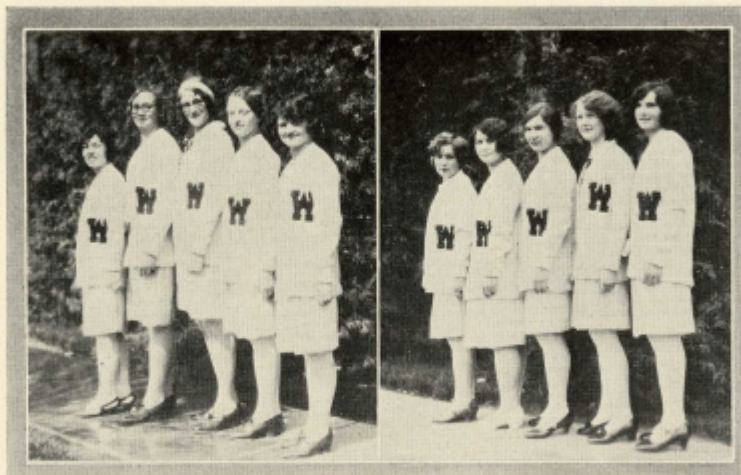

Illustrating the intense interest shown during the past year, eighty girls earned arm-bands, and of these, thirty later won pins. Of the sophomores eight were awarded sweaters and one a blanket.

The highest honor that may be conferred on the girl selected as the most representative of the high ideals of W. A. A. is the privilege of having her name inscribed on a silver loving cup.

Despite the interest one feels in the achievement program of W. A. A., one must not forget the social advantages it offers. At the beginning of the fall quarter the Mixer is given. Here is the opportunity for any bashful frosh girl to dance and make merry with the sophomores. And it is here, too, that many friendships begin. Following this event, is the Tea Dansante, a little more formal but still delightful occasion. Providing much merriment and capering is the initiation of new members. But joy rolls at the annual W. A. A. Sports Frolic Carnival, given for the school to raise money for the sweater fund.

Sweater Winners

ONE of the highest honors which can be awarded to a member of W. A. A. is that of having earned a "W" sweater. This year there has been an added goal for third year students, that of winning a "W" blanket. Though there is an effective point system on which these honors are awarded, there are other elements which influence the award such as having cooperated with the W. A. A. in furthering its aims by having good standards of sportsmanship, high ideals of womanhood, and by maintaining a scholastic standing above average.

The coveted "W" blanket was awarded to Vera Schoolcraft this year and "W" sweaters to June Harris, Ann Higley, Alice Martin, Eva Ramsey, LaRena Carpenter, Laura Hall, Laurretta Cook, and Bertha Anderson. Girls who were awarded sweaters during the year of 1928 were Mary Giolitti, Hazel Elsea, and Gladys Johnson. Dorothy Newcomer was given one in 1927.

The Cabin

IN every organization there is always some favorite spot that stands first in the memories of the past. This is especially so in a group that maintains such a degree of friendship and interest for each other as the members of W. A. A. To those girls who enter fully into the spirit of the organization, that memory is of the W. A. A. cabin. This is located in the mountains fifteen miles from the school and in an ideal setting for a week-end outing. It is a spot where every member is eager to go and live the life of a real out-door girl.

Health Education Department

THE Department of Physical education has during the past two years increased in size to a greater degree and with more rapidity than any other department on the campus. This, it is felt, is largely because of the increased faculty, the girls of the school, and the Women's Athletic Association. With this growth has come expansion in the number and variety of sports offered. These new forms of athletics have been enthusiastically accepted by the participants.

The new Associated Students' gymnasium has made possible a much more extensive program of indoor activities. Other things such as new equipment have made the sports program more attractive than ever before.

Primarily the Physical Education Department is to provide for the exercise and recreation of the women students. Of equal importance is the encouragement of friendliness, enthusiasm, and sportsmanship.

The vigor of participation has been exceptionally noticeable this year. All major sports have been overcrowded with girls anxious for places on the various class teams. Both first and second teams this year were handled on an intramural basis, and those who were members of the Women's Athletic Association received points for such activity.

The Byahem

THRU the eagerness of the girls for a more organized recreation, class teams were organized in the major sports. Ability, sportsmanship, scholastic standing, and the faithful observance of training rules were the standards for making the teams. Those who were members of W. A. A. earned 50 points by making the squads. A certain number of practices were required and three games were played. The sophomores proved the victors in hockey, winning two games and playing the third to a tie.

In the winter quarter basketball came to the front as the favorite. In order to be eligible a girl must be technically able; scholastically competent and physically fit. The last is accomplished by adherence to training rules and a permit to play from the health department. The sophomores were successful in winning all three games played in the tournament.

Baseball and tennis become the center of interest in the spring. Teams in these are organized on the same basis used for basketball and hockey. Other sports included in the department are volley ball, hiking, horseshoes, golf, horseback riding, speed ball, and archery.

Dance Drama

CREATED and produced by the students of dancing, the dance drama presented in the green triangle was esthetically and materially a success. In three parts, the drama portrayed the diverse types of the dance that have been featured in class work. The first part consisted of informal studies, including numbers based on variations of rhythmic group movement, on musical style, and interpretations.

Pert nursery rhymes, weird, grotesque, and quaint Chinese moods composed the second part. Each girl who participates gives her utmost that the production may be a success.

As a result of the year's work in the field of creative art, with the dance as the medium, the students developed, organized and presented the project not as a means of entertainment, but for the joy and intrinsic value to themselves of creative work.

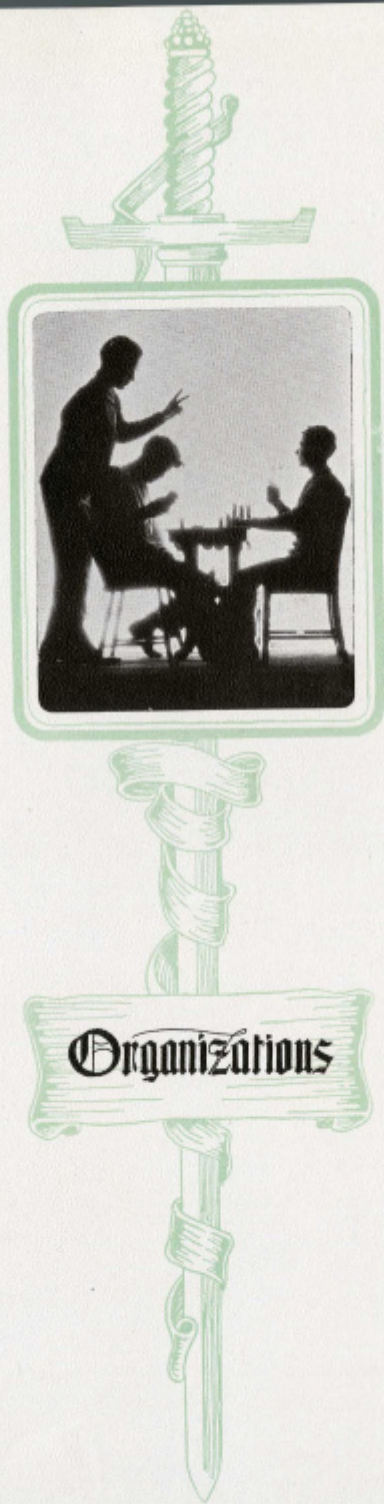

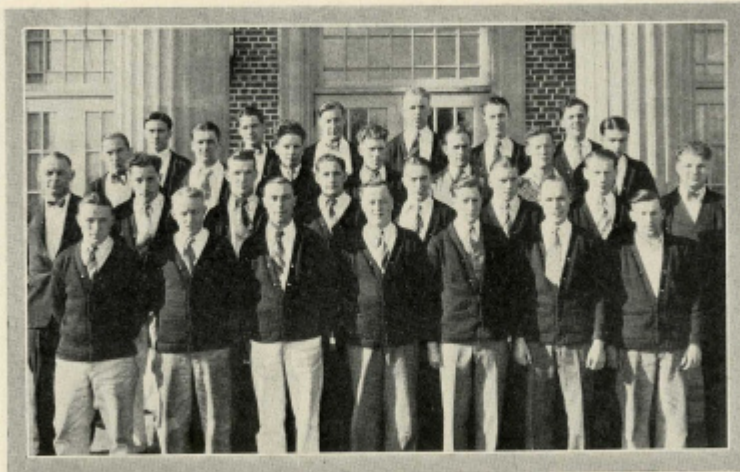

Friends! Companions! Associates!

The most valuable heritage of a college education. Friendships fanned into flame by campus organizations. Social gatherings and many happy hours spent together form undeniable friendships. It is a glory to be part of the whole, working shoulder to shoulder with a common goal in mind. In the following section is recorded the achievements of these campus clubs. These are some of the things that make college life worth while.

Crimson "W" Club

ONE may belong to the Crimson "W" club only after he has been awarded a coveted "W" in one of the four major sports of football, basketball, baseball and track. The only exception to this is that of the yell king and the athletic managers who are automatically elected into Crimson "W" club.

The group sponsors all athletic events of the school and it is their duty to see that officials are secured. They act as a vigilance committee at the games.

The school always looks forward to at least two social affairs, given by the club during the year, one an informal and the other a formal dance, the "Varsity Ball."

Knights of the Claw

THE Knights of the Claw organization had its beginning during the period between the summer and fall quarters. At this time the founders decided that the organization would be for the purpose of officiating at all athletic contests and upholding school traditions in general. During the fall quarter, the members officiated at football games. They also took in a number of new members. During the winter quarter they took charge of basketball contests in the pavilion.

The membership of the Claw is limited to twenty-five at present, and only students of Sophomore standing or better are eligible for membership. As the institution grows, the membership limitation will be raised in accordance with expansion.

Alpha Zeta Chi

THOSE students who are appreciative of music in its fine sense form the membership of this club. Although, perhaps, not all are talented, the members have provided many entertaining programs for both the school and themselves. The club has always displayed enthusiasm at its meetings, members contributing at each meeting some composition or, perhaps, a talk. Throughout the year, with the aid of the music department, glee clubs, and quartettes, the organization has provided music for various student and professional activities. The Twilight Musicales and Sunday afternoon concerts, were especially nice.

A custom which the club hopes to make a tradition and which met with much success this year on its initial trial, is that of the presentation of a fine-arts program in various districts. This year tours were made to the lower and upper Yakima valley, the music department being assisted by the physical education and art departments. These tours are beneficial to the students participating and add to the honor of W. S. N. S. as well.

Miss Ethel Miller, adviser, and teachers in the music department have done a great deal toward furthering the success of the activities of this club.

INTEREST in and appreciation for art have brought the members of this organization together. The success of a group such as that of any of the fine arts can be attributed to only the members themselves, and their adviser and leader, since all accomplishment is possible only through the cooperation of interested workers.

This year has shown a marked advance in the activity of this organization. Its close relationship to the other arts, music, dancing, and dramatics has allowed its participation in the production of many fine school projects.

Meetings are devoted to discussions of recent achievements in the various fields of art, and sculpturing, and real value is derived from the organized contract. With the cooperation of Miss Pauline Johnson and Miss Caroline Williams the club has had a most successful year.

History Club

THE Herodoteans represent the group of students interested and majoring in history. They are one of the most active organizations on the campus. The many avenues for discussion are well used to advantage in social meetings when members who have traveled or who have interesting historical reports present their contributions.

Mr. Fish, adviser, has made possible for the club many enjoyable evenings by willingly giving his time and generously offering his home for social and business meetings. Several delightful dinners were held this year and during the winter quarter a visit was made to the Cove School, where Mrs. Ina Davis, an honorary member is teaching. Here the group furnished a part of the community entertainment.

It was decided this year that election of officers should take place twice yearly, at the last meeting of the fall and spring quarters, and officers to hold office for two quarters.

Science Club

THIS organization is perhaps one of the largest in school and offers one of the widest ranges of interest. Meetings are devoted to discussions of the many phases and developments of science, and outside speakers lecture at various times throughout the year.

Scientific experiments of great interest have been made, and field trips have offered many useful studies. The well-equipped laboratory of the science department has been of value to the club. The most recent experiment made and one which created much interest was that dealing with electricity. Each member became acquainted with the formation of static electricity and its various currents.

Although this is not quite in the line of science, a meeting held just before the first formal of the year, is devoted to a talk on etiquette and proper dress at a formal function, by the adviser, Mr. Leonard.

Social events are not below the intellectual scientists; this year two weiner roasts and a picnic were well attended.

Pi Omega

WHAT is "personality?" What causes a criminal to become such? It is best to be an introvert or an extrovert? These are only a few of the questions brought up in discussions held at the Pi Omega meetings every Tuesday night. When these discussions reach an unsettled point speakers are often brought in to offer their opinion on the subject. Or perhaps one member of the group did a little research work and discovered all he could about the item and led the discussion. One of the most interesting meetings of the year was in the form of a group discussion on the "Psychology of Advertising." At another meeting a detailed study was made of tests and measuring.

Even more interest was created the last quarter of the year when the club was again made honorary—the members being elected, out of those people designating their interest in psychology. No one is elected into the club who has not had at least one quarter of psychology with a grade of "B" in the course.

Sue Lombard

PERHAPS the most outstanding achievement of the Sue Lombard Hall Association this year is its division into small organized groups. The new standards which have been established consist of definite music hours, typing hours, and special rules regarding late and week-end leaves. When the rules were voted on, each girl had the opportunity of checking on those she thought would benefit the entire group.

This year, Sue Lombard Hall had a very full social calendar. The first event was the Open House which was a very elaborate occasion. It was well planned, each room being decorated especially for the Open House. Frequent week-end dances were given, and at times bridge parties were given for those who did not care to dance.

As is the custom, Sue Lombard and Kamola Halls jointly sponsored the Snow Ball this year. This formal was one of the outstanding events of the year.

Unusually novel was the tea given in honor of Sue Lombard Horsely for whom the hall was named.

PERHAPS the most outstanding achievement of the Sue Lombard Hall Association this year is its division into small organized groups. The new standards which have been established consist of definite music hours, typing hours, and special rules regarding late and week-end leaves. When the rules were voted on, each girl had the opportunity of checking on those she thought would benefit the entire group.

This year, Sue Lombard Hall had a very full social calendar. The first event was the Open House which was a very elaborate occasion. It was well planned, each room being decorated especially for the Open House. Frequent week-end dances were given, and at times bridge parties were given for those who did not care to dance.

As is the custom, Sue Lombard and Kamola Halls jointly sponsored the Snow Ball this year. This formal was one of the outstanding events of the year.

Unusually novel was the tea given in honor of Sue Lombard Horsely for whom the hall was named.

Kamola Hall

THIS year marked the advent of improved organization in Kamola Hall. A council consisting of house officers and a representative from each wing discussed and arranged important business, thus eliminating the necessity of full house meetings. New standards were adopted which have furthered closer friendship and co-operation between the girls.

Although the girls felt deeply the loss of Miss Ora Kennedy, who was transferred to Sue Lombard, they were very fortunate in having for their new House Mother Mrs. Mildred Brite, whose wide experiences with young women enables her to follow in Miss Kennedy's footsteps.

Socially, Kamola has been very successful. Open House in the fall with a peppy program and dancing started the year. The Hall sponsored several teas, one of the loveliest of which was that given in honor of Mrs. Brite. Passersby on many a forbidding night heard the music and laughter of Kamola girls at their pajama parties, which so long have provided the "homey" atmosphere in dormitory life. May 3 marked the last social affair of the year, the "Maybasket." Dancing, cards, and a program provided the entertainment, and decorations and refreshments gave seasonal interpretation. This day marked the introduction of a new annual event for the social calendar of the hall, to be given in May of every year.

Men's Residence

THE Men's Residence, like Kamola and Sue Lombard Halls, has aimed toward ideal environment by the establishment of new house standards. Recreation rooms have been well equipped. An improvement over last year's material is the addition of more reading matter. Room inspection particularly is emphasized, a rules committee having been appointed to inspect rooms.

In spite of its masculinity, "John Lombard" entertained very admirably at several formal functions. The Open House held during the winter quarter was perhaps the outstanding social event of the year for the hall. Afternoon tea at this time opened the various events scheduled. A tour of rooms before the evening program proved most interesting, especially to the residents of Kamola and Sue Lombard, to whom the various abodes in the masculine domain seem so incomparably mystifying. Dancing, and cards furnished entertainment during the evening. The midnight hour brought the serving of a delicious lunch before the departure of the guests, some of whom perhaps are having the endless wait of another year before secrets of the domain are again revealed to their inquisitive eyes.

Home Economics Club

NOT far from the campus proper is situated a very fine little cottage where women students learn the art of cooking, and household management. Here the fortunate members of the Home Ec Club hold their meetings. The nature of its organization provides a full schedule for participation in school affairs, and the responsibility of planning and preparing for all dinner dances and teas of other clubs, which has fallen upon its shoulders, has been well upheld.

The style show presented in the fall proved very interesting, as well as being diagnostic of campus apparel. The outstanding social affair this year was the Dutch Sport Dance given in the Spring quarter. Tulips were the motif for decoration and a Dutch program provided a true Holland atmosphere.

The club is advised by Miss Muriel McFarland and Miss Ruby Hutchinson.

Kappa Pi

KAPPA PI represents the organization of women students interested in kindergarten and primary work. The membership of the club is not limited and each member has her choice of joining either the Literature, Art, Music, Pre-School Work, or Primary Problems group, which are all small units making up a whole. Under the advisorship of Miss Clara Miesner, supervisor of the kindergarten and primary departments, and through their own efforts and interest, the members have assisted in the promotion of the primary activities in the city.

The Spring Concert presented under the guidance of the Kappa Pi provided a program given by children under twelve years of age. This concert has both entertaining and educational values, presenting various aspects of training for the lower grammar grades. The annual Kappa Pi bazaar held in the fall is an outgrowth of the activities of the kindergarten-primary department. All articles for sale are products of either kindergarten children, primary children or of the club members. Here direct contact with children's work is made.

A social meeting is held at least once every month, usually in the form of a theater party, candy pulling bee, etc.

Officers are elected twice yearly, holding office for one quarter and a half.

Off-Campus Club

THE newest organization in school is the Off-Campus Girls' Club. Its purpose is to establish early in the school year and maintain a better contact with school activities; to encourage participation in such activities, and contribute something of value to school and campus life.

This club was organized during the winter quarter of 1929 but took no real active part in school affairs until the spring quarter. Because of the fact that the club was not fully organized, a social event was not given immediately after its formation but rather was delayed until April. At this time one of the most beautiful dances of the year was sponsored by the club. This was in the form of an all-school dance given in the gymnasium the evening of April 26.

What was perhaps the best music of the year characterized this affair when Ray Nicholas and his Footwarmers furnished the music. Dancing was enjoyed by the guests until a late hour. During the course of the dance refreshments consisting of punch and wafers were served.

This relatively new club enjoyed a very successful year, and it is thought that with the advent of a new term the club will enjoy even greater prosperity.

Here begins the last department of the 1929 Hyakem! Buffoonery!

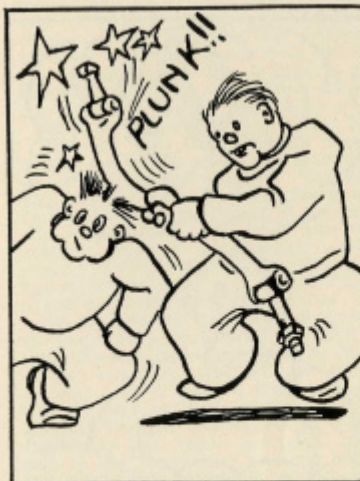

In this section we have made an attempt to be humorous. Perhaps we have succeeded; perhaps we have failed. If the following pages are able to furnish an hour of divertisement, we have succeeded. Don't forget, it's all in fun!

hitting the unsuspecting frosh on the part of his hair with the axle of the school truck. Towering with rage, the frosh had snatched the piece of metal from the amazed Oscar and muttering the strange oaths of the Satsop tribe, that sounded like a cross between a high school senior talking French, and Abie Libenstein delivering Lincoln's Gettysburg address, the frosh started in pursuit of the rapidly retreating sophomore. Miles and miles they ran until Sleepy Oscar thought his heart should burst. Knowing that a blowout was dangerous while traveling at such rapid rate, Sleepy Oscar suddenly turned and raised the muscles of his aching arms for mortal combat. It was a heroic gesture, for Sleepy Oscar was reeling in utter exhaustion with huge beads of perspiration stumbling and staggering across the dust on his face and falling quietly down his neck. Sleepy Oscar stiffened as he set himself for the attack of the raging frosh who had thundered toward him. But a moment and it would all be over. Thoughts stumbled over one another as they rushed in a mad stampede thru his mind. He was repentant in many of them. Most of all he wished that he had not hit the frosh with the truck axle. No. He wished fervently that it had been a piledriver! His thoughts melted and became permeated with a sentiment that was not to be denied. An aching sting smote his loudly thumping heart as he thought of Vivian Hansen. He remembered the mighty wallop she packed in her dainty duke, and the lash of her indignant tongue. He had not meant to do it. He did not know why he had. But she had been so irresistible there, beneath the silv'ry moon, shrouded in the arbor of the beautiful sauer-kraut blossoms. He was sorry that he had so impetuously kissed her on the stoop that night.

Hitting the unsuspecting frosh with the axle of the school truck

NOTHER year on the dear old Campus Green had started with new and virulent sophomores basking blissfully on the sun-baked steps of the headache sanitarium, quaintly called the library by the natives as they swung from tree to tree.

Verily tho, was it a headache sanitarium to Sleepy Oscar McOscarson and Boloney-Face Angus McWaffle, two of the nefarious sophomores of mostly more or less notoriety on the Campus Green, who were rather provoked that the turning of pages and the crackle of peanuts always left them with an ailing feeling in the region that was registered as fourth-class matter at the registrar's office with the passing of each blonde or brunette, when they awoke while studying in the dear old sanitarium.

Sleepy Oscar and Boloney-Face Angus, being of proportions that compared favorably with any rhinoceros of generous dimensions, were always certain to be selected to wield a big part of the reception committee for the frosh. It had always been so, ever since the first year that they had been sophomores. Just the year previous, however, Sleepy Oscar had almost met with a violent climax to his career of nasal sonatas and the many rests interim, when he had made a frosh from Satsop mad by sneaking up behind him and

Then there was Florence, tall, and dark, and mystical in her enchanting beauty. He had taken her into his arms and called her his little lamb chops. She had called him names too, and he had been awfully surprised, and had left, bent, and broken, and badly warped. Such names they were!

Then there had been the blonde beauty of lovely Louise. She had been the frosting of his cake, the cream of his coffee, and finally his pain in the neck. She was beautiful to look upon, but then, so is the Yellowstone National Park. He had ignored her frigid cordiality until one night she had told him to go. Taking the hint that he was no longer wanted, he had gone away, never to smoke her cigarets again.

There had been others. Rae, and Jean, and Erma, and little Nell. And still others. But in the fleeting moment that was left, he could not think of them all. In fact, he didn't want to give his thoughts to the memory of some of them. For instance, there was that redheaded inferno from Tenino. Whew! He gasped at the thought of it. What was her name? He probed deep into furor of his fatigued mind in the quest of the elusive monicker? Mary? No. Alice? No. Neva? No. Sally? No. Ah! It was Hel—! —but what did it matter, it was all over now. And yet, she most certainly had not needed to be so rough about it. He had only tried to be sociable. He had laughed patiently at her joy of it all when she had tweaked his nose until it had felt like the broadside of an elephant. He had laughed with her again in her joy of it when she had blacked his eye with a monkey-wrench. Such a hectic night it had been! A little wildcat had she been. A little typhoon, a little herd of stampeding streetcars! Tropical, and torrid, and combustible! He had been petrified with patience thru it all, but when she had taken his car away from him and made him walk home—that was far beyond the bounds of his patience! And in his indignation he had concluded the evening by throwing rocks at her as she disappeared laughingly down the road into the darkness of the night. Sleepy Oscar shuddered at the thought of it and struggled to sweep the memory of it from his mind.

He was sorry that he had kissed her on the stoop that night

Then there had been Harriet. So sweet and demure was she in her golden charm. Like a beautiful vision! They had been so happy together, until she had stepped out with the gorgeous Merle Ayers and had become the most popular girl in the college. It had been a tragic moment for him. As the memory of it recurred to him, he flicked a tear from his dust-covered brow, it bounced two or three times and splashed quietly on the fence beside the road.

There were other things too for which he harbored no little regret, and he thought of them remorsefully and sad in this last fleeting moment. Sleepy Oscar's life at W. S. N. S. had been one filled with football, femmes, and flunks. And he had become a legendary hero about the Campus Green when as a frosh he had single-handed almost annihilated the sophomore reception committee. It had been a sorry looking crew of sophomores that had straggled into the infirmary after the melee for the firstst aid they could get.

Sleepy Oscar had come from Tono where he had been known as a child prodigy, graduating with honors from the eighth grade at the age of seventeen. In high school he took all honors and half the equipment of the football team. When he had left for college everybody turned out and rejoiced, and the townsfolk tendered his father a vote of thanks.

...like a beautiful vision

And as he stood there in the heat of the mid-afternoon sun, dust-covered and perspiring, and struggling to manifest himself to the consequences of the impending conflict, he presented a tragically heroic figure. Every muscle an ache, every moment a length of time. The crisis had come.

Panting and gesticulating wildly with the truck axle, the frosh had thundered up to him, his face a fierce mask of rage, and livid with indignation.

"You!" he roared, and he glowered menacingly at the taut figure before him.

Sleepy Oscar, courageous to the bitter end, stood set and immobile, ready for the onslaught. But his heart was sick, and to weary to ascend into his throat where it seemed that it wanted to go.

"You!" boomed the terrible frosh again, and it seemed as tho he was going to smack Sleepy Oscar on the thinker with the piece of truck paraphernalia.

Sleepy Oscar felt his weary heart sink. Down, downer, downest! Would it never stop it mad descent. He raised his foot lest he should tread on it. He glanced at his watch. It was only seventy-seven days until Christmas!

"You!" stormed the frosh's voice again with propagating vehemence. Sleepy Oscar winced under the weight of it. His rapidly mitigating strength as tho it could support his plus-four no longer. The frosh appraised him contemptuously for a moment, then resumed his speech in a confusion of florid but adamant adjectives and invective facts. "I am utterly dismayed at your ungentlemanly conduct, which I am most certain is derogatory to the spirit of your class. I do not desire to engage you in fisticuffs, but I must insist upon an apology!"

For a moment Sleepy Oscar stood gaping and stunned with amazement. His up-raised fists fell limply at his sides. He thought of the marathon of which he had just taken such an important part, of the mighty fear that had gripped his stalwart heart, of the wear and tear he had exerted on his corpuses, and of the deathly weariness that gripped him now. He eyed the towering bulk before him. How could this be the bellowing, roaring creature that had so relentlessly pursued him for mile after mile? Barnum was right!

"Eh?" he had blurted, and quietly fainted. This had been Sleepy Oscar's experience during the hazing season the year previous, and Oscar had not forgotten. This year he had carefully made all the necessary adjustments to avert a recurrence of the same ill-omened adventure. No truck axle was he going to drape on the illiterate brow of a frosh this year. No. Rather, Sleepy Oscar had chosen to be the high exalted drapist on a new and very shiny meat-cleaver. Amen!

Boloney-Face McWaffle's life had been one of many disappointments. His first great disillusionment had come when he discovered that he couldn't keep his long-legged underwear from forming a lump in his socks like the man pictured in the Sear-Roebuck catalog. Insanity had threatened him when the sloppy sock vogue had made its debut and he had found that he could not adopt the fad without revealing his red flannels. But being a youth of great resourcefulness

He flicked a tear from his dust covered brow

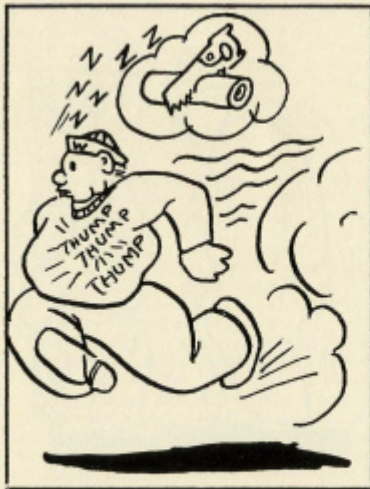

"You," boomed the terrible Frosh

Graduated from eighth grade with honors at seventeen

Boloney-Face had spent his earlier life in Bothel where his folks bought a piano on the easy-payment plan. Then they moved, but they managed to trace them. With the piano gone Boloney-Face had to cease his music lessons, and the neighbors were glad.

In high school, Boloney-Face McWaffle took an active part in the school life, escaping from every concert the school orchestra gave. In athletics he was one of the greatest stars in the history of the school, being the greatest dakes grabber on the marble squad, and singing second base on the Glee Club. Owing to the crowded conditions at the school he was graduated at the end of seven years to make more room.

Miles and miles they ran

Boloney-Face had overcome this obstacle in the pathway to fashion by sending his red flannels to the K. E. Shrinkatorium from whence he had received them in a highly abbreviated state, permitting him to adopt the fad much to his exaltation and joy. At first he had felt as brazen as a flapper in his newly-acquired nudeness of limb. But with the passing of the days he came to long for the soothing caresses of the autumn breeze as it stole thru the hair on his manly shins.

Boloney-Face McWaffle had always been a girl-shy youth. But in his simple heart he harbored a great yearning to feel the gentle kiss of romance, to feel the thrill of a loved one's heart-beat against his flannel shirt. He yearned to know the society of such darlings of the world of romance as: Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Margaret Wegner, Greta Garbo, and Alice Crosby. He yearned to acquire the manly fascination and the slapless technique of John Barrymore, or Kermit Rodgers. But he never would. He feared the rustle of skirts, lipsticks, and baby talk. He thought of Salome, Cleopatra, Dorothy Robards, and the havoc they had wrought with the hearts of men. As they had done, so would women always do. Boloney-Face remained aloof. He had only one heart and he intended to keep it strong and healthy.

His father had died when Boloney-Face was at the tender age of twenty-one, and was operating a streetcar in Tacoma. The McWaffles had always held an important place in the educational world, so Boloney-Face, not wanting to work neither, decided to go to college. And as we know, he chose W. S. N. S.; it having the best connections with the Milwaukee side-door Pulman service.

The years passed, but Boloney-Face didn't. Boloney-Face didn't mind. If the profs could stand it, he could. The only misgiving he had had during his career at W. S. N. S. was when Harold Akam had arranged a blind date for him. When he saw the femme of Akam's choice for him, he wondered who was supposed to be blind, the obliging Mr. Akam, or himself. There was no doubt but that someone was supposed to be. Then too, there had been that memorable occasion when he had fallen out of a second story window while sleeping in class. The old gardener had remonstrated him severely for landing in a bed of flowers. And he remembered how, when he had passed the first floor on his downward flight, Wy Mekkes had asked him where he was going, and how vehement Professor Fish had been with him for leaving class without an excuse. It all seemed funny now, although he had failed utterly, at the time, to see the humor of it.

Boloney-Face had made quite a name for himself on the gridiron. There were other names that the coach had made for him. He was the dumb idol of every femme on the campus. They loved his bashful aloofness, and his child-like helplessness when he so valiantly tried to pary with their womanly wiles. Boloney-Face thought women were pests, and they loved him for it.

And now that another season for hazing had rolled around, Boloney-Face was happy in his task of beating the frosh to a pulp. That he was happily happy in his happiness was a certainty. And as he, and his partner in crime, Sleepy McOscarson, nonchanlantly tossed another squirming, illiterate frosh into the cooling depths of Coofer Creek it would not have been a difficult task for anyone to decipher the ineffable expression of keen satisfaction that wreathed their homely mugs.

A Tragedy

Silently we paddled about the lake. Just she and I. The beautiful setting sun was a fiery ball of copper. And as it set, it cast deeper and deeper purple shadows on the lake.

And the girl! She was beautiful. Her hair was as dark as a raven's wing, and her eyes were limpid pools of moonlight. Her half-parted lips revealed gleaming teeth like priceless pearls.

Not a sound broke the stillness except the drip, drip of the water off my paddle, and the splash of a jumping fish.

Oh! What a perfect setting for love and romance!

And then she spoke. Flat and nasal her voice went screeching across the water: "Oh! Lamp de scenery! Ain't it a boid?"

Silently I knocked the ashes out of my pipe and crowned her.

Action Thought Premeditated

With the lust of blood in his eye, Orris May, prominent young sleep-walker, boldly sauntered into Dad Straight's Tostwich emporium yesterday afternoon, and without a word of warning, nibbled furiously at a canine which was laying unprotected on the counter. The dog struggled heroically to wrest himself from the fangs of the monster, died a couple of times, and then yelled for maplesticks and coffee.

It was understood late last night that the fiendish bow-wow nibbler was terrorizing all the kennels in the city and at a late hour no action had been taken for his arrest.

When last seen, he was chasing a pack of hounds in the direction of Cle Elum, snapping his gum at them as he ran in pursuit.

Old timers in this vicinity scratch their gray heads in perplexity trying to recall the criminal deeds which can approximate the depredations that the vicious Mr. May has wrought.

Gnawed

The memorable deeds of infamy that made Jesse James such a character in financial circles years ago become trivial in comparison with this one-man crime wavelet.

A reward of twenty-five cigar coupons has been offered by the city council for the capture or apprehension of this demon pooch distractor.

WHO CARES

A retiring butterfly is our Vincent. And popular—oh, gee but Vinc is popular. He has been in our fair institution for over three years now having taken everything but correctives and natural dancing. He graduated from Buckley High school in 1926 but who cares about that? While there he was active in handball, football, Senior ball, and Ball and Chain. Sophomore honorary. Since coming to W. S. N. S. he has been an active participant in sofaology at Kamola and Sue Lombard halls. Vincent is the campus lover—ask any of us girls.

FAIRES PRATER

MADMAN'S VICTIM

Faires Prater, student at the Washington State Normal school was in a serious condition at the infirmary late last night after having been hit on the head with a pool ball in the hands of Fred Knoell. When booked at the station last night, Knoell would make no statement, but after several hours grilling at the hands of Chief of Detectives Edward Sloccum he made a full confession.

Prater, it is thought will recover soon enough. Dr. Amos Hull, after diagnosing the case, said that an operation was inevitable. Tragically stalked in the wards last night where Ruby Gowen and Mabel Stick paced the halls frantically while the operation was being performed. Late this morning a depth of fifteen inches had been reached in Prater's scalp. With but four feet yet to go, Dr. Hull hopes to reach the misle by tomorrow night.

Friends and creditors are rushing to Prater's bedside for fear that the worse may happen.

IT'S UP TO YOU

No doubt you will be shocked at this announcement. Why? I ask you again, why? Mosquitos have no conscience! House flies should stay single! We must look at this matter squarely. We must face the facts.

But on the other hand there is still another angle to the question. We can prove without fear of being corrected that it all runs along a bell-shaped curve. Any fair-minded human being would have looked behind the barrel first. What is the answer? There is but one ultimate answer; two plates of codfish. Why should we accept less. Two plates—no more! Then the little rabbit said, "You can't fool me, Mr. DeWees, I know who you are."

William Nicholson.

TRAIN IS HIT BY STUDENT

Disregarding all signals, the Milwaukee Olympian crashed into Harold Akam early last evening. The cow-catcher was bent completely out of proportion. Akam was absolved of all blame when it was discovered that he carried a regulation tail light.

Bruce Mitchell noted evangelist, stated that gambling was the greatest menace to civilization today when he spoke at a meeting of the Kamola Hall Association last night. He even went so far as to rate gambling as a greater menace than hall-tosis and Luella Faulkner.

FARRAR DENIES BIG SCANDAL

The reported engagement of Frank Farrar, the famous inventor of java-proof doughnut holes, to the Bearded Lady of a well-known circus, was vehemently denied by the young doughnut dunking wizard as he stepped from his large yellow car while the trolley was being put back on. He seemed drawn and haggard as he indignantly parried with the volley of questions directed at him by the relentless reporters. Postum would've given him instant relief.

"Ridiculous!" he exclaimed, when informed of the rumor. "The report is utterly unfounded. I am, at present, keeping company under such circumstances, with no one. You may quote me as saying, that as far as the Bearded Lady in question is concerned, I have not even met the lady, and entertain no desire whatsoever to do so."

When the young inven-

tor's wife was approached on the subject, she grew furious, striking the reporter on the back porch with the piano, and slamming the door in his face. It is thought that she did not wish to be interviewed in regard to the matter. However, there are those who are inclined to believe that she mistook the reporter for her husband.

When the representatives of the press called at the tent of the Bearded Lady, they were informed that she was not at home. She was out buying a moustache cup.

Oh Mother, pin a rose on me. Consider the daisy. Now you have it—Dana Gibson. No relation to the great artist, part of who's name he bears, but an aspiring actor is our Dana. To the average coed the name Dana Gibson means ROMANCE! Those of us who saw him and heard him in "Puyallup and San Francisco" cannot but shudder at the thought of it. Say Hello to Dana.

COOFERS HAVE NEW PRESIDENT

Thursday, May 2

By an overwhelming majority, Lewis Stevens was elected to the presidency of Coofer club. Running on a meal ticket, Mr. Stevens had been considered the favorite from the beginning, although Fred Crimp was looked upon by the Stevens' forces as an ominous threat to the final election of their candidate. However, the final results of the election did not substantiate the reputed influence and power of the Crimp political machine. It collapsed completely when the ballots began to be cast, after looming up with terrific strength as they had parried off the attacks of the Stevens' clique while the bull was being cast.

The crushing defeat of the powerful Crimp political machine gives added strength to the contention that cookies should not be eaten in bed. An air of complete destruction is apparent in the dumbfounded gloom of the Crimp camp. Not a twitter comes from the once mighty Frederick Crimp or his associates. The Stevens' forces have done the job with a completeness that is amazing even to the most ardent pinochle player. Let this be a lesson to all those who sit around and wait for their best friend to tell them. Let this be a sinister delineation of what happens when a person eats garlic while playing Post Office. Why hesitate? Do it now! Every seat may be taken!

Mr. Stevens, the victorious candidate, was vibrant with joy when the representatives of the press called on him at his suite at the county jail. Tall and handsome, the youthful president-elect greeted the reporters with open arms. The air was permeated with the odor of five-cent cigars. Hyacinths clambered from every corner, held back by chains and handcuffs to the wall. Clad only in a pair of B. V. D.'s that were so loud that he had to be shouted at thru megaphones, he was a stirring example, why long-legged underwear is popular in Finland.

"Gentlemen," he began as he struggled to retain his composure. It was sagging around his knees. "I have not yet fully recovered from the excitement and the thrill of my tempestuous campaign and the ultimate victory that I had the good fortune to be mine. I can only say that that I am overjoyed that the people have made me their choice, and that the working girls have so unanimously rallied to my support. I wish to express my very inadequate appreciation and gratitude to my dearest friends and most ardent supporters, who so unfalteringly helped me along the rugged road of success to a glorious victory, August Krow and Carl Jensen!"

He hesitated for a moment as he blew wreaths of smoke that floated in quiet ascent to the ceiling where they crashed and fell in a heap on the thick rug. "I shall make every effort to construct a new feeling of comradeship in the ranks of the Coofer Club, based upon pink petticoats and listerine. A bigger and better

Coofer Club is my fondest dream!"

And as the representatives staggered out of the room he laid himself wearily upon a chaise lounge and blew soap bubbles with a saxophone, then chasing them with errie nonchalance hither and thither and yon and smiting them viciously with a fire-ax.

SLOCUM SUED FOR HEART BALM

The mysterious escape and disappearance of the notorious and desperate doorbell ringer and soup gargler, Wilfred D. Picklepot was solved early this morning, when his body was found locked in the dining hall shortly after breakfast clinging to a piece of two-by-four which was later proved to be a piece of toast after careful analysis at the detective headquarters. It is thot that he starved to death during his involuntary confinement in the dining hall.

Wilfred D. Picklepot is not the prisoner's true name. It is one of the many aliases he assumed during his long and notorious career. Since his escape, his identity has been firmly established as Waino Cain Lary, formerly assistant keeper of the davenport at Kamola Hall. Lima beans and egg spots on his vest drove him to crime.

A Tale of Whoa

This is a story of the wild and woolly West, where men are men and the plumbing is terrible. Out where the people are so tough that the canary sing bass, and folks chain their babies to logs to keep them from biting the dogs.

Up over the horizon rode Black Buck Musgrove, the bold, bad bandit. He was on his way to the village Emporium, therein to pass the time away. As he rode he presented a very good figure. He was all dressed up fit to kill. Why shouldn't he? His father was a butcher. A very large and handsome ring was on his trigger finger. It was, in fact, a 1000 scandal power diamond. Now really, Black Buck was not so terrible looking. In fact, he was good looking before the pile driver hit him in the face.

Drawing nigh the Greasy Vest Tavern, Black Buck dismounted from his trusty plug and entered the joint. The first sight that greeted his eyes was the inn-keeper's daughter. Oh! She was a queen! She had a face like a can of worms, and her teeth were beautiful. Both of them. But to Black Buck she looked like a combination of Clara Bow and Joan Crawford. Black Buck had an eye for beauty like Ben Turpin anyhow.

He walked over to the fountain and called forth for some of the barkeepers vintages. After nine or ten various thirst quenchers, he was feeling quite vicious, so he walked over and seized poor Gertie. (That was the girl's name).

Being a good girl, she did struggle mightily to free herself from the villian's embrace.

"Oh, save muh, save muh," she cried. "Is there no one man enough to free me?"

Our dashing hero, rough, tough, and handsome, rushed forth.

"I will save yuh!" he cried. So saying he pulled out his trusty six-shooter and cut Black Buck's throat.

Of course he married the girl, and they lived happily ever after, except their children ate crackers in bed.

To a good laugh, and to those more humorous moments during our days at W. S. N. S. we have solemnly dedicated these pages. We hope that we have fostered no ill feeling or caused any other reaction that would be contrary to the spirit of fun in which they were written.

The advertisers in the following section of the book have contributed materially toward making the 1929 Hyakem a success. They deserve the undivided patronage of the student body. To them we owe a debt of gratitude for the interest they have shown.

Taste that can be trusted-- Values that can be tested.

Of all the nice things a clothier can promise his customers, can you think of a better 10 words? It means your Michaels-Stern or Oregon City suit will be correct. It won't have too much of "this" or too little of "that." The style won't be so extreme as to promote a snicker or so conservative as to bring forth a sob.

On top of this style assurance are TESTED VALUES that are so sure of themselves that they regard comparison as a friend instead of a foe.

Does Friendship Really Count In Business?

Quite a long time ago someone said, "there is no friendship in business." He couldn't have been thinking very hard when he said it because nothing was ever farther from the truth.

The business of our store has been built up entirely on friendship—the sincere kind that tries to give our customers just a little more than a square deal.

The very future of this town depends on the friendship of the surrounding community, and we who serve in its stores should remember that every discourteous and selfish act on our part hurts our own future; every kind and thoughtful act is just another stone to build up mutual prosperity.

Let's make 1929 a big year for community development. We can do it if we'll all pull together.

The telephone has grown to be one of the most potent factors in the welfare and development of the world. The business of rendering telephone service ranks among the largest in the country. No other public utility touches so intimately the lives and business of the community. Anything calculated to help those engaged in the business or profession of rendering this public service, to think clearly and to act honorably, is a distinct step in advance. This is the standard of correct practice, covering the relations of The Telephone Company to its subscribers and the public in general.

KITTITAS--THE VALLEY OF ABUNDANCE

Before the White man had moved westward to the central part of the state of Washington the Indian word Kittitas, meaning valley of peace and abundance, had been applied by the original Americans to the Kittitas valley, which reaches across a major portion of the county known by that same name situated just east of the Cascade Mountain range.

For the Indians it became the camping ground where tribes did not engage in battle, but where they harvested berries, made their Indian flour from the roots of the Camas and reaped the benefits of plenteous wild game and fish. A healthful and energizing climate and the beauty of the natural scenery in the adjoining mountainous country, dotted with lakes and marked with rushing streams of clear water were theirs to enjoy.

The same advantages, augmented by the introduction of domestic crops and animals and the improvements and social structure set up by a more civilized people, exist under present conditions.

A peaceful, prosperous valley settled with American homes, near the markets, surrounded by natural beauty and in the center of a community rich in cultural as well as agricultural development---that is the dream of the future for the Kittitas valley.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR SUPERIOR SETTLERS

While it has passed the pioneer stage in its development, this section at the same time has many farming opportunities offered only in a new country. Through the aid of the Federal Government a huge irrigation system is nearing completion that will assure ample water for all crops on an additional 72,000 acres. It is estimated that there is room for five hundred more families on this land.

Values for undeveloped raw land range from $1.00 to $15.00 per acre. Improved farm values vary from $10.00 to $115.00 per acre. These figures are those presented by a board of appraisers appointed to arrive at valuations. In this way it is sought to exclude speculative tendencies and to compute proper values without respect to the prospect of water for the new irrigation system. Copies of appraisal lists are available for inspection.

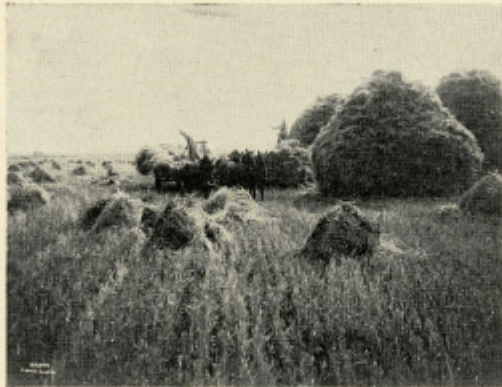

The Kittitas valley offers one of the greatest examples of diversified farming in the nation. Nearly four million dollars worth of agricultural products are marketed annually from this area. Poultry, livestock—including farm flocks of sheep and dairy herds—alfalfa, cereals, fruit, and root and truck crops all add to the production wealth. Tree fruits are advised in some districts and cost of production is low on account of the limited amount of spraying necessary.

Wheat on the best farms normally yields forty to seventy bushels to the acre; oats, sixty to one hundred bushels; hay, one and one-half to five tons and potatoes, ten to twenty tons. Berries, head lettuce and other truck crops thrive under proper care.

Thousands of sheep and cattle that graze during the summer on the nearby open range and forest reserves are wintered on irrigated lands in the valley. This creates a large demand for feed. Surplus hay and grain find a ready market on the Pacific Coast only one hundred fifteen miles distant.

In the Kittitas valley the prospective settler will see two extreme types of farm values—improved farms producing profitably under proper management, and raw sagebrush lands comparatively low in price awaiting only water and other improvements to make them yield a rich income.

ELLENSBURG---THE BUSINESS AND SOCIAL CENTER OF THE KITTITAS VALLEY

Ellensburg, the county seat of Kittitas county and the geographical center of the state of Washington, is also the center of the immense development in connection with the construction of a $9,000,000 irrigation project by the government. The completion of this project will eventually double the population of the town and its immediate environs. It is fortunately located with regard to railroads and highways, being on the main lines of the Northern Pacific and Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific and is also the hub of the state highway system with all trans-state highways routed through the city. Ellensburg is a shipping outlet for a rich agricultural area with an exported crop value of over $4,000,000 annually. Ellensburg has a population of about 6,500 and is credited with having the highest per capita bank deposits of any city in the state. It has well improved streets, beautiful shade trees, modern churches and homes, and a decorative street lighting system that is usually found only in the larger cities. The country surrounding Ellensburg is one of the richest in Washington in its varied resources since it not only produces agricultural wealth but has mineral and lumber resources in tremendous quantities as well. The nearby coal fields, the largest in the Northwest, produce nearly 1,000,000 tons of the best grade bituminous coal each year. Coal products have averaged $4,000,000 in value annually and the lumber has brought in $1,000,000. Of particular aid to its marketing facilities is the fact that it is the closest large agricultural section to Puget Sound country which offers a ready market for its surplus crops and products. With all of this wealth described above produced by the little already improved, it can readily be seen of what economic importance the completion of this $9,000,000 project will be to the vicinity. Seventy-two thousand acres will be added to the class of wealth producing land.

SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES

In the matter of schools and churches, no town in the United States offers better or more varied opportunities. Practically all denominations are represented here with attractive buildings and ample facilities for carrying on their various types of work. The prospective home seeker always takes this into consideration.

In regard to schools, it is unusual in a city of moderate size to find the situation that exists in Ellensburg. Here it is possible to get complete schooling from the kindergarten through college. This is made possible largely through the presence of one of the three state Normal schools. The school at Ellensburg is known nationally as one of the outstanding teacher training institutions with an annual student enrollment of about twelve hundred. The city school system is rated very high by educational authorities. Three grade schools, a large modern senior high school and a new junior high school, now being built, offer unusual facilities to the settler who is considering the welfare of his children.

Another agency doing a type of work similar to that of the churches and schools is the Y. M. C. A. Ellensburg's Y. M. C. A. was established through community effort and has been maintained enthusiastically and successfully ever since. It is a definite asset to the community.

SOCIAL LIFE AND RECREATION

Not only must a community have industries and potential agricultural wealth to thrive, but it must have recreational and social opportunities. This community has a rich and varied life. Its citizens take an active part in the various civic, fraternal, and social organizations. All interests of the town center in and are best expressed through the Chamber of Commerce. This organization numbering in its membership practically all of the business and professional men of the community has assisted in many civic and community projects. There are besides the Chamber of Commerce such service clubs as the Rotary and Kiwanis, the leading fraternal organizations, women's clubs, P. T. A.'s, Civic Improvement League, golf club, and numerous purely social clubs. Ellensburg has three theatres and is equipped to care for even the largest traveling road show. It's county fair and rodeo are known over the entire west and attract each year many thousands of visitors. Play grounds for the children, including wading and swimming pools, offer pleasant relief in the warmer summer days. Lying as it does in the foot-hills of the Cascades, Ellensburg is within one or two hours drive of a dozen mountain canyons, each with it's rushing torrent of crystal water. These streams and the many mountain lakes are kept well stocked by an efficient county game commission and the sportsman from even distant points is attracted here by the reputation of the local fishing. Each fall Kittitas county is the Mecca of the hunter as well, for it has excellent cover and is well stocked with Hungarian Partridge and Chinese Pheasant. In the winter a varied program of outdoor sports is enjoyed, from skating, to skiing and tobogganing, on the snow covered foot-hills.

SPLENDID COMMUNITY SPIRIT EXEMPLIFIED IN RODEO, COUNTY FAIR, AND AIRPORT

The type of spirit which characterizes this community is found in connection with the annual Rodeo, County Fair, and Airport. The rodeo and fair grounds were constructed by volunteer labor and equipment with hundreds of local residents helping to level, fence, and otherwise improve the grounds. The fair buildings, grandstand, and bleachers have been erected from attendance receipts and appropriations by the county. The community airport has been made possible by spirit of the same type.

The rodeo is held each year during September and will be on September 6, 7 and 8, this year, and is filled with many interesting events to re-enact the early days on the plains. A complete program is provided each day for the entertainment of visitors and good accommodations will be found in the hotels and restaurants.

The county fair represents the home sciences, and agricultural production of the valley and is held with the rodeo. The diversified agriculture for which the county is noted, will be fully represented again this year, and merits one's visitation and study.

The community airport is located a short distance north-east of the city and consists of 160 acres, one-half mile square, and is free from obstructions. A runway 500 feet wide by 2,600 feet long is now being completed which will place the community in a position to accommodate all airplanes.

ELLENSBURG---THE GATEWAY TO NATURE'S PLAYGROUND

One of the few unexploited beauty spots of the nation lies to the north of Ellensburg in the upper reaches of the Cascades. Here Alpine meadows blossoming in many colors lie side by side with snow banks and miniature glaciers. Over fifty natural lakes are found at various elevations, each offering a perfect objective for camping trips. The fact that these lakes are not all reached by wagon road and must be seen by those who hike or pack in by horses has kept them unspoiled. They are stocked with practically every variety of trout and other game fish. The streams that feed these natural reservoirs attract the fisherman who does not care for lakes. Over two hundred miles of fishing streams are available.

At least twelve mountain canyons open upon the plain near Ellensburg and a short drive carries one within reach of their shade and coolness. Many of these canyons have several branches or forks. The Teanaway in particular has three forks with scores of places to camp and fish. Mount Stuart towering 9,270 feet into the air may be reached by driving to the end of the road and hiking or packing in on good trail.

If one follows up the Cle Elum river past beautiful Lake Cle Elum, one comes to Salmon le Sac. This is a veritable gateway to one of the wildest and most beautiful mountain countries in America. The Cooper river and Wapatus river join near Salmon le Sac. Following the Cooper river trail one comes first to Cooper Lake, a five mile trip. Then next is Pete's Lake, a gem-like body of blue water deep set in heavily wooded slopes. Above Pete's Lake is one of the most beautiful of all the lakes in this district, Spectacle Lake. This is reached by very few campers or fishermen since it means a fourteen mile pack trip, but those who view it and fish in its crystal waters are eager to return. Even higher in elevation lies Glacier Lake, a small body of pure ice water with glaciers dripping directly into it. Glacier fields lie all about.

Other lakes that attract many visitors and offer beautiful sites for camping are Waptus, Diamond, Fish and Hyas. These are all reached from Salmon le Sac.

The two other large lakes besides Cle Elum are Keechelus and Kaches. These are all accessible by good highways and have good facilities for camping. There are hotels and mountain lodges for those who desire that type of accommodation.

In the winter when heavy snows come, the hills that surround the valley tempt the lover of winter sports. Long unbroken stretches of uniform slope offer ideal courses for ski and toboggan. Hundreds enjoy the thrill of such exciting physical exertion.

In the fall Kittitas county and especially the immediate environs of Ellensburg teem with upland bird hunters. With wonderful natural cover for quail, Hungarian Partridge, and Chinese Pheasant, this valley is noted for its well stocked fields. Quail are at present protected. Blue Grouse in the foot-hills offer the hardy hunter who likes to hike an opportunity for good shooting. The sage hen, now protected, is gradually coming back and may be seen in large numbers in certain sections.

In general, there is no more attractive district in the state to the lover of the outdoors than this valley set among the foot-hills of the snowy Cascades.

Time's Up

Well, the Hyakem is finished, be what it may! As the last pages go to press, we must pause here to bid a reluctant good-bye to a task that has been an ordeal and a pleasure.

We give this book to you and hope that it may have a significance which will ripen as the years pass by; we have worked with an eye to the future, and we hope only to have succeeded in helping you to remember.

This Hyakem has been a product of the sweat of a hard-working staff, and to everyone of this crew we owe a debt of gratitude for service.

This Hyakem has been the product of courses slighted, pleasures missed, and leisure cast aside; but if it pleases you, it is the more worth while. We have worked hard; we have written and rewritten stories, drawn and redrawn division and introductory pages. But if you are satisfied to a small degree, we are too.

We want to thank those who have helped compile this volume; to name them would consume a number of pages. Their aid is none the less appreciated. To those members of the faculty who have pitied us and granted what leniency was in their power, we are indeed grateful; to those who have understood and not forgiven we can say nothing.

We wish to thank especially Walt Irvine and Fred Wiman of the Western Engraving and Colortype Company for their willing cooperation. Even at the most trying time they were willing to help to the utmost. Keith Kaynor and John Wilkins besides many others of the Record Press, deserve what little thanks we are able to offer. Inadequate as our expression of thanks may be, they did more than was really required of them in an effort to make this book a volume of which we could well be proud.

To Mr. and Mrs. Clerf of Pautzke's Studio we offer thanks for the splendid photography and willing cooperation they have given us in many other branches of the work.

For the school for whom we have labored these many hours, days, and months, we have only a deep love that will never cease. We have made the Hyakem for you and have given all gladly.

Editor.
